Annual Report – 1 May 2007 to 30 April 2008

Directors' Report

I Introduction

Fidelity Funds (the "Company") is an open-ended investment company established in Luxembourg as a société d'investissement à capital variable ("SICAV"). It has an umbrella structure and its assets are held in a number of different funds ("sub-funds"). Each sub-fund is a separate portfolio of securities managed in accordance with specific investment objectives. Separate classes of shares in the Company (the "Shares") are issued in relation to the sub-funds. Each sub-fund provides an investment opportunity in professionally managed pools of securities in different geographical areas and currencies, with the investment objective of capital growth, income or a balance between capital growth and income.

Shares are authorised for sale in a number of jurisdictions and are listed on the Luxembourg Stock Exchange, except for the Reserved Funds and the Institutional Reserved Funds.

Swiss investors are advised that with the exception of Asia Pacific Growth & Income Fund, European Fund, Japan Dividend Growth Fund, Fidelity Gestion Dynamique, Fidelity Gestion Equilibre, Fidelity Sélection Europe, Fidelity Sélection Internationale, FPS Sterling Growth Fund, Growth & Income Fund, Multi Asset Navigator Fund, Multi Asset Strategic Fund, Emerging Market Debt Fund, International Bond Fund II, Euro Cash Fund, US Dollar Cash Fund, the MoneyBuilder Funds, Live 2020 Fund, Live 2030 Fund, Live Today Fund, the Reserved Funds, Institutional Emerging Market Debt Fund, Institutional Euro Core Plus Bond Fund, Institutional Asia Pacific (ex-Japan) Fund, Institutional Asia Pacific (ex-Japan) Opportunities Fund, Institutional Emerging Markets Equity Fund, Institutional Optimised European Equity Fund, Institutional Hong Kong Equity Fund, Institutional Hong Kong Opportunities Fund, the Singapore Dollar classes of Shares, the Sterling classes of Shares (with the exception of Global Focus Fund, India Focus Fund, United Kingdom Fund, Sterling Bond Fund and US High Yield Fund), AMDIST, B, B-MDIST, C, E-ACC and J classes of Shares, the present sub-funds of Fidelity Funds have been authorised by the Swiss Federal Banking Commission for distribution in Switzerland.

II Financial Statements

The Directors submit their report and the audited financial statements for the year ended 30 April 2008.

The audited financial statements are set out on pages 132 to 713 of this Annual Report, with results for the year appearing in the Statement of Operations and Changes in Net Assets on pages 634 to 653. Dividend information for the sub-funds is detailed on pages 709 to 710.

A copy of the Annual Report may be obtained upon request from the offices of companies registered as distributors or from the Registered Office of the Company. Comparative figures for the previous year can be found in the Annual Report of the Company for the year ended 30 April 2007. Alternatively, please go to www.fidelity-international.com, choose your country of residence, select legal documents and Fidelity Funds Annual Report.

III Activities during the year

During the year the Company followed the normal activities of an open-ended investment company. The Investment Manager's Report that follows gives an overview of performance. The Investment Manager, FIL Fund Management Limited ("FFML"), and the Company's appointed distributor have continued to increase their marketing activities in the jurisdictions in which the sub-funds are registered worldwide, particularly throughout Europe and in the Far East. As at 30 April 2008, the number of Fidelity Funds registered Shareholders worldwide totalled in excess of 174,000. However, the total number of investors in Fidelity Funds is much greater than the number of registered Shareholders due to the fact that certain registered Shareholders may represent the holdings of many underlying clients. Assets under management at 30 April 2008 exceeded USD 86.8 billion. At the year end, there were 125 sub-funds in the Fidelity Funds range. Details of changes to the composition of the sub-fund range during the year are provided in the Notes to the Financial Statements on pages 704 to 712. The Directors may from time to time close sub-funds as well as add further sub-funds with different investment objectives, subject to the approval of the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier ("CSSF").

IV Board of Directors

The Directors of the Company are listed on page 6. Six of the thirteen Directors, serving at 30 April 2008, are considered by the Board to be independent of the Investment Manager and free from any business or other relationship which could materially interfere with the exercise of their independent judgment. There are no service contracts proposed or in existence between any of the Directors and the Company. FIL (Luxembourg) S.A. ("FILUX") is a corporate Director of the Company and has a contract with the Company in its capacity of Central Administrative Agent as described below. In accordance with the Articles of Incorporation of the Company all current Directors will retire at the Annual General Meeting. All of the retiring Directors, being eligible, with the exception of Glen Moreno and Frank Mutch are standing for re-election.

The Directors are pleased to report that a proposal to appoint Mr. Simon Jeffreys will be put before the Annual General Meeting on 2 October 2008. This appointment will be subject to the approval of the CSSF.

Mr. Jeffreys is the Chief Administrative Officer of FIL Limited ("FIL") and is responsible for FIL's central support functions. Prior to joining FIL in October 2006, Mr. Jeffreys enjoyed a long career with the major international accounting and consulting firm, PricewaterhouseCoopers, most recently as its Global Investment Management Leader. He was also a member of its Global Financial Services Leadership Team, where he was lead partner for a portfolio of international financial services companies, including FIL. Mr. Jeffreys takes an active role in the investment management industry and has been a member of the World Economic Forum Pensions Task Force.

Directors' Responsibilities

The Board of Directors has overall responsibility for the Company's affairs. The Company itself has no employees – the Board has established contracts with key service providers under which it delegates the day-to-day management of the Company to the Investment Manager and the Central Administrative Agent as described below, but receives regular reports from these organisations. The Directors are formally responsible for the Report and Accounts of the Company for each financial year, which are required under general principles to give a true and fair view of the state of affairs of the Company. In accordance with those same principles, the Directors are responsible for:

- selecting suitable accounting policies and applying them consistently;
- preparing the accounts on a going concern basis, unless it is inappropriate to presume that the Company will continue in business;
- maintaining proper accounting records which disclose with reasonable accuracy at any time the financial position of the Company; and
- complying with both the Luxembourg Law of 10 August 1915 on commercial companies and the Luxembourg Law of 20 December 2002 on undertakings for collective investment, as amended (“the Law of 20 December 2002”).

The Board of Directors is responsible for the Company's system of internal control and for reviewing its effectiveness. Such a system is designed to manage rather than eliminate the risk of failure to achieve business objectives and can only provide reasonable and not absolute assurance against material misstatement or loss. The duties of the Investment Manager and Central Administrative Agent include the design, implementation and maintenance of controls and procedures to administer the assets of the Company and to manage its affairs properly. The system extends to operational and compliance controls and risk management. Regular reports on controls and compliance issues are provided by the Supervisory Officers to the Audit Committee and/or the Board.

V Management of the Company

Because the company is a self-managed SICAV under Part I of the Luxembourg Law of 20 December 2002, the Board of Directors has appointed three Supervisory Officers (the “SOs”) (known previously as Managing Directors or MDs) to ensure that the functions and activities delegated by the Board to FFML, FILUX and the General Distributor (FIL Distributors) are performed in compliance with Luxembourg Law, the Company's Articles of Incorporation and current Prospectus. The SOs serving during the financial year were Mr Henk van Eldik (resigned 30 July 2007), Ms Emmanuelle Entringer (resigned 3 April 2008) and Mr Simon M. Haslam (resigned 1 July 2007), Mr Nishith Gandhi (appointed 20 July 2007), Mr Andrew Steward (appointed 20 July 2007) and Mr Charles Hutchinson (appointed 3 April 2008).

Role of Investment Manager and Central Administrative Agent

FFML provides day-to-day investment management of the Company, under the supervision and subject to the control of the Board of Directors. FFML is authorised to act on behalf of the Company and to select agents, brokers and dealers through whom to execute transactions and is required to provide the Board of Directors with any reports it may require. FFML has also been appointed to provide valuation, statistical, technical, reporting and other services.

FFML may receive investment advice from, and act upon the advice of, any company within the FIL organisation, including affiliate companies of FFML, and may execute, transact and otherwise carry out its functions, duties and obligations with or through any of these Fidelity companies. FFML remains responsible for the proper performance by such companies of those responsibilities.

FILUX continues to act as the appointed Registrar, Transfer Agent, Administrative Service Agent and Domiciliary Agent for the Company and its sub-funds and Share classes.

FILUX processes subscriptions, redemptions, conversions and transfers of Shares and enters these transactions in the register of Shareholders of the Company. It provides services in connection with keeping the Company's accounts, determination of the NAV of Shares in each sub-fund, class of Shares and currency on each valuation date, dispatch of dividend cheques to Shareholders, preparation and distribution of Shareholder reports and provision of other administrative services.

In addition, the Company has appointed FIL Limited (“FIL”) to provide services in relation to the investments of the sub-funds including valuation, statistical, technical, reporting, and other assistance.

VI Corporate Governance

This statement describes the Company's corporate governance arrangements.

1. The Board has adopted a clear and transparent corporate governance framework for the management of the Company's affairs. There are contractual arrangements in place governing the relationships with FFML, FILUX and FIL Distributors as well as other third party suppliers to the Company.
2. The Directors take decisions in the interests of the Company and refrain from taking part in any deliberation or decision which creates conflict between their personal interests and those of the Company.
3. The Board and, where appropriate, its Committees meet at least four times a year. The Board requests and receives reports from FFML, FILUX and FIL Distributors on the various activities undertaken by FIL companies. Senior representatives of these companies attend meetings by invitation, thus enabling the Board of Directors to question the reports presented to it.
4. FFML's and FILUX's duties include the design, implementation and maintenance of controls and procedures to administer the assets of the Company and to manage its affairs properly. The system extends to operational and compliance controls and risk management. Regular reports on controls and compliance issues are provided by the SOs to the Audit Committee and/or the Board. Company law in Luxembourg requires that proper accounting records should be kept which disclose with reasonable accuracy at any time the financial position of the Company. These responsibilities have been delegated to FILUX. As part of the control framework within FIL, all FIL group employees are subject to a Code of Ethics, which among other things, sets out procedures for personal account dealing in securities. The Board receives regular reports on the Code of Ethics to ensure that any conflicts of interest between personal accounts dealing by FIL group staff and the interests of the Company are properly managed.
5. The Board of Directors has established an Audit Committee which consists of all of the independent Directors and which is charged with reviewing the annual accounts, the external audit process, corporate governance issues, and the relationship with the Independent Auditor, including the recommendation to Shareholders of its appointment and level of fees. The Audit Committee meets at least twice a year and reports to the Board of Directors, making recommendations where appropriate. The Audit Committee meets with the Independent Auditor in the absence of representatives of the FIL group at least once a year.
6. The nomination of new Directors is considered by the Board and is subject to the approval of the CSSF and ultimately the approval of Shareholders at the Annual General Meeting. The level of Directors' fees is put to Shareholders for approval, in accordance with the Articles of Association. The Directors' remuneration earned for the year ended 30 April 2008 was in aggregate USD 421,000* subject to Shareholder approval, as set out on page 708 of this Annual Report. Directors who are affiliated with FFML or its holding company or its subsidiaries have waived their fees for the year to 30 April 2008.

* For comparison purposes, the Directors' remuneration earned for the year ended 30 April 2008, translated in EUR at the foreign exchange rate as of 30 April 2008, is EUR 270,470.

7. The maintenance and integrity of information concerning the Company on the Fidelity website is the responsibility of FIL. FILUX is responsible for the accuracy of translations of documents which may be available to investors in languages other than English. The Directors approve the English form of the financial statements presented to them at Audit Committee and Board meetings.

The Independent Auditor, PricewaterhouseCoopers S.à r.l., being eligible, offers itself for re-election for the year from 1 May 2008 to 30 April 2009.

VII Other Information

Proxy Voting

FFML has a policy of voting equity securities in all markets where it is possible to do so unless the loss of liquidity as a result of attendant share blocking is deemed to outweigh the expected benefits to be gained. Such voting is undertaken in accordance with written proxy voting guidelines employed by the FIL group, of which FFML is apart, and takes account of prevailing local market best practices. The Board reviews and approves the proxy voting policy, activity and guidelines annually. FIL's Principles of Ownership, which summarises how FIL engages with companies in which its sub-funds have invested, can be accessed from the Corporate Governance section of FIL's website (www.fidelity-international.com).

Commissions and Interfunding

FFML uses supplemental research in the course of its work for the Company and other clients that are paid for or provided by brokers through whom the Investment Manager executes transactions for the Company and other clients. Softing arrangements that have been undertaken in respect of the Company include research and advisory services, economic and political analysis, portfolio analysis, market analysis and specialist economic and company research. For the year ended 30 April 2008 the percentage of total commissions incurred by the Company used for soft commissions was 5.68%.

FFML has an arrangement with selected brokers whereby a portion of commissions from security transactions may be paid to the Company to reduce transaction costs. Amounts received by the Company under this arrangement are used to offset expenses. For the year ended 30 April 2008 the Company's expenses were reduced by USD 28,913,256 under this arrangement.

The Company participates in the Investment Manager's interfunding programme whereby FIL's traders, on occasion, identify situations where an account or sub-fund managed by FIL is buying the same security that another account or sub-fund is selling. If a trader can confirm that it would be in the interests of both accounts to execute a transaction between them rather than in the market then an interfund transaction is executed.

VIII Business of the Annual General Meeting

The Board of Directors is proposing the following resolutions be put to the Shareholders at the Annual General Meeting of the Company to be held on 2 October 2008 at noon at 2a, rue Albert Borschette, L-1021, Luxembourg.

For the financial year ended 30 April 2008:

- the presentation of the Report and Accounts;
- the presentation of the Independent Auditor's Report;
- the discharge of the Board of Directors;
- the election of the Directors;
- the approval of the payment of Directors' fees;
- the election of the Independent Auditor;

Investment Manager's Report*

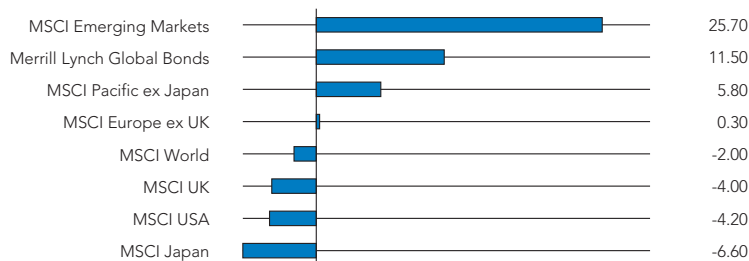

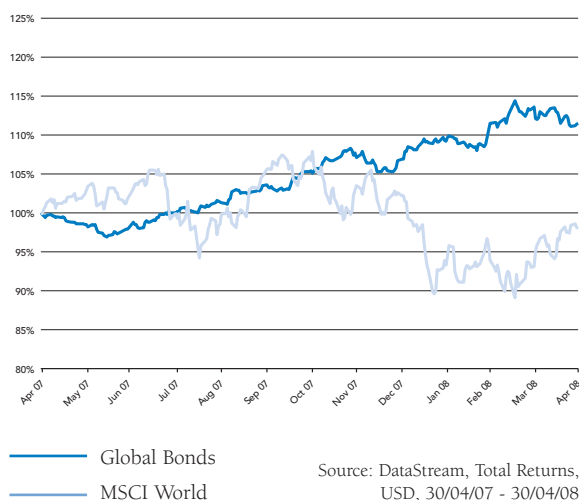

Performance Overview 12 months to end of April 2008

The past 12 months have been dominated by a deepening credit crisis and consequent turbulence in financial markets. Equities declined sharply in summer 2007 and again at the beginning of 2008, although both setbacks were followed by sharp rallies.

The events that destabilised markets were initially caused by high default rates in the US sub-prime mortgage market, which triggered a fall in the value of housing-related debt instruments. Financial institutions with high exposure to these investments announced write-downs to cover potential losses which impacted balance sheets and liquidity ratios. This reduced the amount of money available for lending, contributing to a slowdown in global economic growth. The US Federal Reserve (Fed) cut interest rates aggressively and took additional steps in combination with other central banks to improve liquidity. When investment bank Bear Stearns appeared likely to collapse, the Fed intervened to avert a financial panic.

Towards the end of the period, stock markets staged a partial recovery, as financial institutions took steps to strengthen their balance sheets, leading some investors to speculate that the credit crisis could be nearing its end. Boosted by strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, equities in Emerging Markets, and to a lesser extent in the Pacific ex-Japan region, proved relatively resilient.

Market returns 30/04/07 - 30/04/08 in USD

Source: DataStream, Total Returns, USD, 30/04/07 - 30/04/08

Major government bond markets generated positive returns. Earlier, strong economic growth had resulted in higher inflation and rising interest rates, which led government issues to under-perform investment-grade and high-yield securities. As the credit crisis spread beyond sub-prime mortgage securities into other asset classes, however, investors moved to safer havens. Government bonds outperformed corporate debt, credit spreads widened sharply and high-yield bonds lagged. Despite concerted efforts by major central banks in the US, Europe, the UK and Canada to ease funding pressures by injecting liquidity into the financial system and easing monetary policy, inter-bank lending rates moved up over the 12-month period.

Higher inflation and slower economic growth were the overriding concerns in all main markets. Policy makers were faced with the dilemma of whether to address one at the expense of the other. Rising food and oil prices (the price of crude passed $140 a barrel) pushed inflation above central banks' targets. This, coupled with a decline in the value of home equity, put pressure on households' disposable income and was reflected in lower consumer spending. In the US, the situation was exacerbated by a slowdown in job creation, which combined with rising prices and slowing personal spending to trigger a sell-off in consumer discretionary stocks. Financials declined significantly, as leading firms unveiled deep write-downs of the value of their mortgage-backed securities.

Although heightened takeover activity and strong oil prices provided some support to UK equities, fears of an economic slowdown, especially in the latter half of the review period, intensified as the housing market and consumer-related sectors slowed. In Europe, a strengthening euro affected exporters although relatively robust corporate earnings and takeover activity provided support. Meanwhile, the European Central Bank kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, in order to maintain a balance between risks to growth and higher inflation.

Despite Japan's limited direct exposure to the US sub-prime crisis, sluggish domestic demand, the absence of political initiative, a stronger yen and an increasing lack of interest from overseas investors undermined share prices. Although easing credit concerns and a weakening in the yen fuelled a late rally, Japan remained a relative laggard. The Asia Pacific region was weighed down by concerns that a slowdown in the US would adversely affect exports. However, equities in China and Thailand rose strongly, buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance. The Chinese economy continued to experience low double-digit growth, while improving macro fundamentals and political stability after presidential elections supported equities in Thailand. The energy and materials sectors were the key beneficiaries of rising oil and commodity prices.

Performance Notes

Cumulative Returns are calculated from Net Asset Value price to Net Asset Value price with gross income reinvested on ex-dividend dates. This calculation does not include any initial charge, and represents the true investment performance of the sub-fund.

Since Launch figures are from commencement of operations to 30 April 2008.

Annualised performance is an alternative way of expressing a sub-fund's total return. It assumes a steady compound rate of growth during the period in question and is not the sub-fund's year by year performance, which fluctuated over the periods shown.

Please note that the Manager's Overviews are based on Class A-ACC (USD) Shares for Asian High Yield Fund, on Class I-ACC Shares in the sub-fund's currency of reference for the Institutional Reserved Funds, and on Class A Shares in the sub-fund's currency of reference for all other sub-funds.

Performance data is expressed in the Share class currency of denomination, indicated by the ISO code shown.

Manager's Overview:

US equities fell over a period marked by a credit market crisis and liquidity constraints. At a sector level, financials declined considerably, as leading firms reported write-downs against their exposure to mortgage-backed securities, whose value fell amid increasing defaults in the sub-prime market. Other sectors were also impacted, and a slowdown in consumer and business spending generated recessionary fears. Consumer discretionary stocks were also sold off, as rising fuel costs and higher food prices put more pressure on household budgets and the economy created fewer new jobs. Against this uncertain backdrop, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates aggressively to boost GDP growth and took other unprecedented measures to inject liquidity into, and restore confidence in, the financial system.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Retailers detracted due to concerns that a sharp slowdown in consumer spending would hurt these stocks. In particular, an overweight position in Sears proved detrimental, as the firm's profits were hit hard. Exposure to The Pantry also hindered performance. This convenience store operator forecast a second-quarter loss, as rising oil prices cut into its margins on fuel sales. Both these holdings were disposed of. Meanwhile, holdings in media stocks came under pressure amid weak advertising sales and pricing. Conversely, materials firms generated healthy returns given a surge in commodity prices. Monsanto was a key contributor, as rising demand for food and ethanol created robust demand for its genetically modified seeds. Natural gas producers EOG, Range Resources and Ultra Petroleum also added value due to improving growth forecasts and rising output prices.

Adrian Brass took over the fund's management in January 2008. Diversified financials represent the fund's biggest overweight position, as the manager has taken advantage of attractive valuations in selected cases such as trust banks and stock exchange firms. He also increased the exposure to metals & mining companies in view of strong commodity prices and solid demand.

American Diversified Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 160 Million

Manager's Overview:

US equities fell over a period marked by a credit market crisis and liquidity constraints. At a sector level, financials declined considerably, as leading firms reported write-downs against their exposure to mortgage-backed securities, whose value fell amid increasing defaults in the sub-prime market. Other sectors were also impacted, and a slowdown in consumer and business spending generated recessionary fears. Consumer discretionary stocks were also sold off, as rising fuel costs and higher food prices put more pressure on household budgets and the economy created fewer new jobs. Against this uncertain backdrop, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates aggressively to boost GDP growth and took other unprecedented measures to inject liquidity into, and restore confidence in, the financial system.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. At a stock level, pharmaceutical firm Theravance detracted after the US Food and Drug Administration found some data issues related to the late-stage trial of a key drug. Elsewhere, an underweight in integrated oil majors, including Chevron and Exxon Mobil, held back relative returns amid rising oil prices. This was partially countered by exposure to natural gas producer Southwestern Energy, which saw an increase in production and strong natural gas prices boost its profits. Holdings in technology hardware firms, particularly Apple, made a notable contribution. In addition to revamping its existing product lines, Apple successfully launched the iPhone. An underweight in leading investment banks impacted by the credit crunch aided stock selection in diversified financials.

At end-April 2008, AGCO represented one of the fund's biggest active positions. Rising demand and constrained supply have seen the prices of soft commodities soar, benefiting the agricultural sector in general and this agricultural equipment manufacturer in particular. Holdings in software firms were increased to overweight, primarily by adding a new position in Nuance Communications, which has a dominant market share in voice recognition software.

American Growth Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 653 Million

Manager's Overview:

US equities fell over a period marked by a credit market crisis and liquidity constraints. At a sector level, financials declined considerably, as leading firms reported write-downs against their exposure to mortgage-backed securities, whose value fell amid increasing defaults in the sub-prime market. Other sectors were also impacted and a slowdown in consumer and business spending generated recessionary fears. Consumer discretionary stocks were also sold off, as rising fuel costs and higher food prices put more pressure on household budgets and the economy created fewer new jobs. Against this uncertain backdrop, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates aggressively to boost GDP growth and took other unprecedented measures to inject liquidity into, and restore confidence in, the financial system.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. A position in Avnet was unrewarding, as semiconductor demand weakened towards the end of the period. The stock's valuation, however, reflects this, and any recovery in demand should boost its share price. Elsewhere, the persistent rise in crude prices hurt refiner Tesoro and created cash-management issues. This holding was subsequently disposed of. Meanwhile, an exposure to Annaly Capital Management detracted because investors remained wary of firms dependent on short-term borrowings. Nonetheless, it invests in mortgage-backed securities issued by government-sponsored enterprises and offers dividend growth opportunities. On a positive note, stocks such as AGCO, Mosaic and Deere that are exposed to the buoyant agricultural markets contributed.

The manager believes the long-term outlook for the energy sector remains robust given supply constraints. He has, however, moved out of most oil-related names and into the natural gas segment. In light of the credit crunch, he also made changes to his financials holdings, choosing companies less exposed to sub-prime issues. Meanwhile, he has sold the position in health care stock Humana, which reduced its earnings guidance; political uncertainty surrounding the presidential elections could also be a hindrance.

ASEAN Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 1,025 Million

Manager's Overview:

The ASEAN region outperformed global markets over the review period. Equities here proved to be more resilient to market downturns, with share prices touching new highs due to strong growth in corporate earnings, mergers and acquisitions, and robust domestic demand. Energy stocks climbed, tracking the rise in oil and commodity prices. Thailand was the best performer in this region, as elections in the country proved conducive to political and economic stability. In Indonesia, crude palm oil producers and coal miners fared well amid high energy and commodity prices. Singaporean equities, however, were impacted by speculation that financial institutions might report further write-downs amid the global credit turmoil. Inflation across the region saw a marked increase as a result of rising food and energy prices.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period due largely to rewarding stock selection in the energy sector. Companies related to oil & gas services advanced on the strength of higher crude prices. Holdings in coal producers contributed, as an increase in commodity prices boosted these stocks. Furthermore, an overweight in the consumer staples sector aided returns. Plantation companies such as London Sumatra and Kuala Lumpur Kepong gained from stronger demand for palm oil as an alternative fuel. Conversely, stock selection in the consumer discretionary sector proved detrimental. In particular, Philippine homebuilder Vista Land & Lifescapes detracted amid concerns that mounting inflation would lead to higher interest rates, making mortgages more expensive.

On 1 April 2008, Gillian Kwek took over the fund's management. She raised the holdings in Singapore, particularly in banks and telecommunications firms, as their valuations had become more reasonable. She also added to holdings in Indonesia, retaining the bias towards large caps that have a more reliable management team. Conversely, she trimmed the exposure to Malaysia and the overweight in Thailand, as she believes the political environment in the latter is uncertain given the greater role played by the army and the monarchy.

Asia Pacific Growth & Income Fund ^{1,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 567 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, Asia Pacific equities ended the period higher, outperforming their global developed counterparts. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility amid concerns that a US slowdown would impact regional exports. Underpinned by strong economic growth, Chinese stocks proved to be the best performers, while improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections aided the returns of Thai equities. Meanwhile, Indian markets were buoyed by strong corporate profits. At a sector level, energy and materials firms benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, whereas a global credit crisis that reduced capital availability tempered the returns of banking stocks.

The fund generated healthy absolute returns, but underperformed its benchmark over the review period. Selected positions in banks and financials enhanced performance. In particular, a holding in Korea-based Shinheung Securities was the biggest contributor, after automobile manufacturer Hyundai Motor bought a controlling stake in the securities firm. Furthermore, Hong Kong-listed Wing Lung Bank boosted returns; the Wu family, one of the bank's major shareholders, expressed its interest in selling its stake to bidders. Conversely, an exposure to China Railway Logistics, which plans to run cargo train operations in China, detracted in light of delays in acquiring a licence.

The manager reduced holdings in banks and real estate companies in view of escalating problems in credit markets and rising interest rates across the region. He sold a position in Westfield Group, as property demand is expected to diminish, which would hurt this Australia-based owner, manager and developer of retail malls. Meanwhile, he sold a holding in Korea-based Kookmin Bank after it acquired a bank in Kazakhstan at a price that was not strategically convincing. Meanwhile, he added exposure to some stocks benefiting from robust internal demand in Asia. Given the high market volatility, the fund's cash position was also increased.

Asia Pacific Property Fund ⁶

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 108 Million

Manager's Overview:

Over the period, property markets in Asia Pacific relinquished their early 2007 gains. Sentiment was dampened by a deteriorating global economic outlook, and adverse conditions in capital markets led to the withdrawal of multiple property equity and debt financing attempts in the region. Nonetheless, strong demand amid low real interest rates and unemployment levels as well as a rise in property prices bolstered corporate profits, particularly in Hong Kong. In Japan, office vacancies remained almost non-existent, rentals continued to grow at a healthy pace and land prices increased for the first time in over 14 years. In Australia, listed property trusts with substantial overseas exposure lost ground, while those with Australia-only portfolios, high quality assets and lower-than-average debt fared better. In Singapore, intervention by regional governments to regulate property prices weighed upon sentiment.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Despite building exposure to the Hong Kong market through the period, an underweight in companies such as Wharf Holdings and Henderson Land hampered returns. Some Japanese commercial property names were impacted by depressed sentiment after companies in the US reported lower-than-expected earnings. This was partially offset by a favourable choice of stocks in China and Australia. Key contributors were several real estate developers, including Guangzhou R&F Properties, which focus on smaller towns in China, where property prices are rising rapidly.

In Hong Kong, the manager increased exposure to companies with strong growth prospects, while in Australia she maintained positions in stocks with a steady income stream. Allocation to China was increased, while the underweight in Australia was gradually reduced, mainly through new positions in retail property. The exposure to Taiwan and Thailand was raised in light of a more stable political and economic environment. Meanwhile, companies' cost-saving initiatives prompted the manager to scale back the exposure to property management services, particularly in Japan, the Philippines and Malaysia.

Asian Aggressive Fund

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, Asia Pacific equities ended the period higher, outperforming their global developed counterparts. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility amid concerns that a US slowdown would impact regional exports. Underpinned by strong economic growth, Chinese stocks proved to be the best performers, while improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections aided the returns of Thai equities. At a sector level, energy and materials firms benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, whereas a global credit crisis that reduced capital availability tempered the returns of banking stocks.

The fund was launched on 18 February 2008. Since inception, it has generated positive returns but has underperformed its benchmark amid high stock market volatility.

The fund aims to provide long-term capital growth from a portfolio comprising securities of companies that have their head offices in the Asia Pacific ex-Japan region, or have some business activities based in these countries. The manager is essentially a bottom-up stock picker and is not restricted in his choice of companies either by size or by industry. He intends to have a fairly concentrated portfolio of typically 55-85 stocks, benchmarked against the MSCI All Country Asia Pacific ex-Japan Index.

Asian Special Situations Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 1,283 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, Asia Pacific equities ended the period higher, outperforming their global developed counterparts. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility amid concerns that a US slowdown would impact regional exports. Underpinned by strong economic growth, Chinese stocks proved to be the best performers, while improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections aided the returns of Thai equities. Meanwhile, Indian markets were buoyed by strong corporate profits. At a sector level, energy and materials firms benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, whereas a global credit crisis that reduced capital availability tempered the returns of banking stocks.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Unfavourable stock selection in industrials and health care detracted. An underweight in the strongly performing Indonesian stocks, particularly coal miners, also proved detrimental, as they benefited from rising energy prices. The manager, however, retains the underweight, as they have become expensive. A lack of exposure to a Hong Kong stock exchange owner, which profited from increased liquidity, was unrewarding. Nonetheless, the manager remains cautious given an uncertain equity market outlook. Conversely, an overweight in China and exposure to quality names in Taiwan and Australia contributed. Non-benchmark Indian steel companies significantly boosted returns, as they benefited from robust earnings, expansion plans, and a positive outlook for regional prices.

The manager realigned the exposure to banks to favour Taiwanese names, in view of the better opportunities that could arise if restrictions on investing in China were to ease as expected. He also reduced the underweight in utilities, mainly by adding electric utilities in Hong Kong, which are well positioned to profit from potential overseas growth and have strong cash flows. Selected mining companies were added amid expectations of a rise in metal prices, while holdings in industrials were reduced given a moderating outlook.

Australia Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: AUD 945 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an encouraging start to 2007, Australian equities succumbed to adverse conditions in global markets, even as a recession in the US became increasingly likely. Financials lost ground, as a number of highly leveraged businesses reported significant write-downs. A decelerating global economy weighed upon exporters' outlook, while higher borrowing costs eroded consumer sentiment at home. Nonetheless, large firms and those supplying to China remained in favour, as they were believed to be better positioned to cope with the rising operating costs. Higher oil and metal prices boosted shares in the energy and materials sectors, while an optimistic earnings outlook buoyed health care stocks.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark amid heightened volatility. Within financials, a position in investment services provider HFA Holdings hampered returns. The manager, however, retains the stock due to its high-margin distribution business, healthy growth in assets under management, and sound business strategy. Elsewhere, shares in online advertising company Seek detracted despite encouraging financial results, although the manager expects the ongoing migration of employment advertising from print to online content to continue. In contrast, an overweight in the strong performing health care sector and stock selection in the consumer discretionary, energy and materials segments proved rewarding.

The manager's focus remains on quality names with strong business franchises, solid balance sheets, sound marginal re-investment opportunities and quality management. He has a bias towards consumer staples and health care stocks but is cautious towards financials that have real estate exposure. He initiated a position in biotechnology firm CSL due to its robust research and development pipeline and strong earnings. He also reduced the bank holdings; the stake in National Australia Bank was sold amid rising concerns about the firm's US and UK exposure and expectations of lower earnings growth. Moreover, he trimmed the position in the consumer discretionary sector in view of weaker consumer confidence.

China Focus Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 4,177 Million

Manager's Overview:

Chinese equities were among the best performers in Asia over the review period, as the economy, propelled by strong private consumption, healthy investments and resilient export orders, continued to expand at a robust pace. Furthermore, fixed asset investments and industrial production growth remained in good shape, while improved corporate earnings boosted demand for Chinese equities. Severe snowstorms at the end of the period, however, caused widespread disruptions, and stocks here lost ground. To exacerbate the situation, mounting inflation and weak economic indicators in the US, one of China's major trading partners, raised concerns that demand for exports would diminish.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark, due largely to an overweight in the consumer discretionary sector. Share prices came under short-term pressure, as consumers reduced their spending on big-ticket items against a worsening global economic backdrop. Performance was also impacted by an underweight in the telecommunications space. Most companies here reported better-than-expected earnings and strong subscriber growth. A lack of exposure to capital goods stocks detracted because these companies were supported by rising capital investment. Conversely, stock selection in the banking and financials sectors boosted performance, as did holdings in insurance firms amid solid growth in premiums.

The fund manager favours companies with a proven and adaptable management team, which is essential to capturing market share and driving earnings growth in China. She increased exposure to telecommunications, by adding to positions in China Mobile and China Telecom. The sector should benefit from the government's new telecom restructuring plans. Energy holdings were increased, particularly in China Shenhua Energy, which is benefiting from robust production growth, a high quality management team, and a favourable outlook for coal prices. Conversely, the manager decreased the exposure to financials, as the sector remains weighed down by persistent credit concerns and rising interest rates.

Emerging Asia Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 12 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, equities in Emerging Asia rose strongly and outperformed their global counterparts over the 12-month review period. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility amid mounting inflationary pressures and concerns that a slowdown in the US would impact regional exports. Underpinned by strong economic growth, Chinese stocks proved to be the best performers. In Indonesia, strength in global energy and commodity prices drove share prices higher, while improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections aided the performance of equities in Thailand, and to a lesser extent in Pakistan. Meanwhile, Indian markets were buoyed by strong corporate profits. At a sector level, the energy and materials sectors benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, while a global credit crisis that reduced the availability of capital tempered the returns of banking stocks.

The fund was launched on 21 April 2008. It aims to generate long-term capital growth by investing principally in securities of companies that have their head offices, or a predominant part of their operations, in less developed countries of Asia. These economies are considered Emerging Markets according to the MSCI Emerging Markets Asia Index (excluding Taiwan and Korea).

Countries included in the proposed benchmark include China (Red chips and H-shares listed in Hong Kong included), India, Indonesia, Malaysia, Pakistan, the Philippines and Thailand. The fund may also invest in countries, such as Vietnam, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka, that are not included in the benchmark.

Emerging Europe, Middle East and Africa Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 997 Million

Manager's Overview:

Over the year to 30 April 2008, the Emerging Europe, Middle East and Africa (EMEA) region generated mixed returns. A high correlation could be discerned among the key markets here before the market downturn in the summer of 2007 and then in January this year, although a few marked, albeit intermittent, differences emerged. While Russia benefited from rising energy prices, factors such as political uncertainty, weak consumer spending and a considerable slowdown in agricultural production due to a disappointing harvesting season hurt Turkey, which ended the period as the biggest laggard in this region. South Africa, meanwhile, was the victim of power outages and the resultant loss of output at its mining companies.

The fund significantly outperformed its benchmark over the review period, driven mainly by an overweight in fertiliser companies, which benefited from a rapid increase in the prices of potash and other fertiliser-related commodities. Uralkali was the largest contributor. Stock picking in the metals sector further enhanced returns. In particular, diversified metals companies African Rainbow Minerals and International Ferro Metals did well, as the prices of most metals increased. Another key contributor was Vostok Nafta Investment, a Swedish company investing in farmland and energy firms in the CIS (Commonwealth of Independent States) region, particularly in Russia.

The outlook remains favourable. Emerging economies in the EMEA region are rich in natural resources and contain 80% of the world's oil reserves, which should bolster their performance, as demand/supply conditions remain tight. The manager continues to believe that long-term demand growth for both energy and materials will persist and thus he has significant holdings in the latter segment. Platinum is a key theme within the portfolio in light of rising demand and the absence of cost-effective substitutes, particularly for autocatalytic converters. The fund has significant exposure to fertiliser producers, such as Uralkali, Acron and Industries Qatar, which should gain from tight global supply and record-high prices of grain and other foods.

Emerging Markets Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 4,642 Million

Manager's Overview:

Equities in Emerging Markets generated robust returns in a period marked by a global credit crisis and concerns about a recession in the US. Domestic consumption and regional exports in the developing world sustained a healthy pace of economic expansion amid slowing demand from the US. Meanwhile, inflationary pressures intensified across most emerging countries, due primarily to rising food costs and surging oil prices. Consequently, many central banks responded with appropriate measures, including interest rate increases, to keep consumer prices in check. At a regional level, Latin American stocks were the best performers; Brazilian equities recorded substantial gains on account of strong internal consumption and rising commodity prices.

The fund delivered solid absolute returns, but underperformed its benchmark. Stock selection among diversified financial services providers detracted, particularly South Africa's FirstRand and African Bank. Investors avoided these firms in view of rising domestic interest rates and lower loan demand, besides higher fuel and food costs, which have made it difficult to service existing loans. These holdings were reduced over the year. On a positive note, an exposure to coal producers Bumi Resources and China Coal proved beneficial, as robust Chinese demand supported coal prices. Elsewhere, fertiliser producers Israel Chemicals and Uralkali contributed because rising fertiliser consumption driven by robust demand for food and biofuels, as well as low global inventories, allowed these firms to raise prices. Investments in railway infrastructure development in Russia was beneficial for Evraz, a leading supplier of rails and long steel products.

The demand growth prospects for many commodities, including oil, remain good as long as the Chinese and Indian economies do not slow down dramatically. Consequently, the manager increased the exposure to energy companies, particularly coal and gas producers, from a broadly neutral position to an overweight. The allocation to Chinese equities was also increased, as a recent sell-off had brought these stock valuations down to reasonable levels.

Euro Blue Chip Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 766 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators in the region continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund outperformed its benchmark and achieved first-quartile positioning over the review period, due mainly to selected companies that create opportunities for growth from within. Chemicals holdings catering to the buoyant agricultural commodities market supported fund performance. The requirement for better yields from agricultural land and increased crop plantation for biofuels drove demand for fertilisers and high quality seeds. This, coupled with a tight supply situation, boosted shares in K+S and Israel Chemicals. Electric utilities, such as E.ON and Électricité de France, found favour due to an optimistic outlook for power prices. Conversely, fears of losses related to risky loans adversely impacted selected bank holdings, such as Italy's UniCredit.

The fund is overweight energy companies, with exposure to a selection of oil refiners that should benefit from rising margins. For instance, Galp Energia stands to gain from the discovery of new oil wells in Brazil, which it jointly owns with Petrobras. Conversely, the manager remains underweight banks and sold the holding in Société Générale given the bank's exposure to global capital markets. Towards the end of the period, however, she found reasonably valued opportunities in this sector.

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators in the region continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund marginally underperformed its benchmark and achieved first-quartile positioning over the review period. It belongs to the class of investment funds known as tracker funds. These funds are invested in such a way that they provide returns as close as possible to those of the index. They use a full index replication approach, with each stock in the portfolio being held in the same proportion as it is in the index. Hence, there is no attempt to add value through stock selection.

The manager seeks to ensure capital growth in line with that of the eurozone equity markets by closely matching the construction of the Dow Jones Euro STOXX 50 Index, with the minimum tracking error. The Dow Jones Euro STOXX 50 Index is a concentrated index of the 50 largest companies in the eurozone. The manager does not make any stock, sector or geographic investment decisions.

European Aggressive Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 3,710 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its key rate three times after increasing it initially. A strengthening euro, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and action taken by the ECB to inject money into the credit markets, however, provided support. Economic indicators continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated in the region, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Metals & mining holdings contributed, driven by strong commodity prices and a positive outlook for the industry despite uncertainties about the US economy and global economic growth. Among the strongest contributors was MMC Norilsk Nickel, which benefited from tight supply/demand conditions for nickel. Shares in leading potash producer Israel Chemicals rose following price increases due to low inventories. Conversely, positions in the transportation sector detracted given concerns that higher fuel prices would hurt airlines' earnings growth.

The fund retains its substantial exposure to the materials sector, as the manager believes that the structural growth potential, i.e. continued strong emerging-market growth, and supply shortages for these companies' products have still not been fully priced in. Within materials, he is also finding opportunities in agricultural and hard commodity stocks. Conversely, he remains cautious on financials. He has, however, increased exposure to insurance stocks, as he feels that concerns over their solvency have been overdone. He will look to increase exposure to consumer stocks if the consumer slowdown is correctly priced in.

European Dynamic Growth Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 343 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to balance sluggish growth against rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its rate three times after increasing it initially. A strengthening euro, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and action taken by the ECB to inject money into the credit markets, however, provided support.

Over the period, the fund outperformed its benchmark. Stock selection in capital goods firms contributed. In particular, holdings in electrical equipment firm SGL Carbon proved favourable, as the company benefited from strong pricing power and increased demand for its graphite and carbon products. Positions in chemicals companies were also rewarding, especially an overweight in Syngenta, a producer of fertiliser and crop science products. Food price inflation and shortage of arable land have increasingly forced farmers to seek better yields, thus boosting demand for crop science products. An underweight in banks also bolstered relative returns, although a similar weighting in oil companies, which gained from rising energy prices, detracted.

The manager favours companies that are in the early stages of a high-growth period of their life cycle and should grow regardless of the economic outlook. The portfolio also comprises firms that have exposure to fast-growing developing markets, such as Russia and other BRIC (Brazil, Russia, India, and China) economies. These markets offer higher growth, as living standards improve to levels in the West. The manager also believes that the recent weakness in stock markets has created some new investment opportunities in selected growth companies.

European Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 252 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to balance sluggish growth against rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its key rate three times after increasing it initially. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also hurt stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. An overweight in the metals & mining sector aided returns, as stocks here were buoyed by rising metal prices. Among the strongest contributors was a position in MMC Norilsk Nickel, a leading producer of nickel, where shares gained due to high metal prices, driven by limited supply of key commodities globally and by strong demand from emerging economies such as China. An underweight exposure to diversified financials and banks was also beneficial given persistent concerns about the fallout of the credit crisis. Conversely, holdings in the transportation sector, specifically Ryanair, proved unfavourable due to fears that higher fuel prices would cut into the airline's earnings growth.

The manager retains the existing strategy of bringing together the best of Fidelity European funds. In terms of the overall positioning, the portfolio had an increased exposure to underlying fund managers who have a more aggressive investment style. At a sector level, this translates into an increased weighting in mid and small caps, where stock pickers are finding better buy ideas. At the end of April, the highest exposure relative to the benchmark was to the metals & mining and media sectors, while the top underweight was in commercial banks and diversified telecommunications firms.

European Growth Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 11,595 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its key rate three times after increasing it initially. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators in the region continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund outperformed its benchmark and achieved first-quartile positioning over the review period. An underweight in banks proved helpful, as they reported losses from their exposure to risky loans. Moreover, the requirement for better yields from agricultural land and increased crop plantation for biofuels drove demand for fertilisers and high quality seeds. This, coupled with a tight supply situation, boosted shares in Potash Corporation of Saskatchewan and Monsanto. Conversely, a cautious stance towards metals & mining firms detracted, as they gained from merger activity and rising commodity prices. The manager has, however, increased the position in miners and bought a holding in BHP Billiton in view of its cheap valuation and diversified product mix.

He is cautious about the outlook for the consumer discretionary sector, as valuations are still stretched and consumers are likely to forgo expenditure on big-ticket items due to a worsening economic environment. Conversely, he is positive about chemicals firms in view of supportive supply/demand conditions for their products. Over the review period, he increased exposure to fast-growing emerging economies, as he believes cheap labour and transportation costs here would remain favourable.

European Larger Companies Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 230 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to balance sluggish growth against rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its rate three times after increasing it initially. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators in the region continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. A holding in Ryanair detracted, as investors focused on the impact of higher fuel costs on the airline's profits. The manager, however, believes that ancillary revenues will offset these additional costs. Moreover, a position in Banco Popolare was hurt by the firm's disappointing results and concerns about its stake in Banca Italease. Nevertheless, the value of this stake has already been written down significantly and investors should focus on Banca Popolare's attractive franchise and long-term merger synergies. Conversely, an underweight in diversified financials helped, given their losses from exposure to risky loans. Also contributing to fund performance were shares in luxury car manufacturer Porsche, which was driven by encouraging sales and speculation that it might raise its stake in Volkswagen.

The manager remains cautious about materials, as he believes the uptrend in the more cyclical metals & mining and chemicals sectors is not sustainable. Although he maintains an underweight in financials, he has added to companies, such as AXA in the insurance sector, which have a robust earnings outlook. He continues to favour companies such as Porsche and Reed Elsevier in the media and automobiles sectors.

European Smaller Companies Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 865 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its key rate three times after increasing it initially. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated in the region, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Stock selection in non-food stores and media firms boosted returns. In particular, shares in internet retailer ASOS returned 144% over the year under review. Its earnings per share for the year ending March 2008 is expected to grow by 94%, as it introduced new products, broadened its customer base and expanded geographically. Meanwhile, Danish wind turbine manufacturer Vestas Wind Systems benefited from substantial upward earnings revisions, as it continues to improve its sales and profit growth outlook. Conversely, a position in Carter & Carter detracted following profit warnings and the death of its founder.

Amid the uncertainty, the portfolio has been shifted in favour of defensive growth stocks at the expense of cyclicals. The manager increased the overweight in health care and also found interesting opportunities that fall under his outsourcing theme. He is more cautious about industrials, as he expects profit forecasts to be revised down. The fund is exposed through positions in miners to the rapid growth of developing economies. The manager retained the financials underweight, as the less buoyant economic and financial environment raises some concerns over their earnings prospects.

European Special Situations Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 27 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to balance sluggish growth against rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its key rate three times after increasing it initially. A strengthening euro, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and action taken by the ECB to inject money into the credit markets, however, provided support. Meanwhile, GDP growth moderated and the unemployment rate fell.

The fund has significantly outperformed its benchmark since its launch on 21 January 2008. Holdings in the chemicals sector contributed strongly. Shares in Israel Chemicals and K+S, leading potash producers, rose following price increases due to tight demand/supply conditions. Positions in capital goods firms also proved favourable, as they benefited from higher demand growth from emerging economies. Moreover, an underweight in the telecommunications and health care sectors boosted relative returns. Conversely, holdings in the transportation sector were unrewarding due to concerns that higher fuel prices would hinder the airline's earnings growth. Nonetheless, the manager continues to believe that selected companies in this sector are attractively valued.

At end-April, the manager was overweight materials, particularly the chemicals segment, through K+S and Israel Chemicals, where conditions continue to be favourable and earnings growth remains strong. He is also overweight financials, where he added to insurance firms, such as Allianz and Zurich Financial Services. These firms are reasonably valued, as the insurance sector suffered due to concerns over asset write-downs, although solvency ratios are comfortable and the general outlook for insurance is still positive.

France Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 523 Million

Manager's Overview:

Equities in France fell in tandem with their other European counterparts amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation in the eurozone has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. Consumer prices in France, too, remained worrying. In order to balance sluggish growth against rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators were mixed: fourth-quarter GDP growth in France slowed, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund outperformed its benchmark and achieved first-quartile positioning over the review period. Exposure to food & beverage companies added value due to investor preference for defensive stocks. In particular, shares in seed producer Vilmorin & Cie rose, as increased crop plantation for biofuels drove demand for the high quality seeds the company sells. Elsewhere, a lower-than-benchmark exposure to technology firms bolstered relative returns after analysts predicted slower growth for the sector. Conversely, an underweight position in France Telecom detracted given the company's upbeat results. Nonetheless, the manager remains cautious towards this telecommunications firm due to its limited growth opportunities.

Given the liquidity concerns, the manager adopted a more cautious stance towards firms with a market capitalisation of above EUR 10 billion and increased the exposure to these stocks by 19% over the review period. He also raised the underweight in financials amid growing uncertainty about their earnings prospects, mainly by reducing the exposure to Société Générale. Holdings in basic materials companies were, on the other hand, increased with the purchase of shares in ArcelorMittal, which should benefit from its high exposure to the rapidly growing Emerging Markets.

Germany Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 774 Million

Manager's Overview:

Equities in Germany fell in tandem with their other European counterparts amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation in the eurozone has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. Moreover, a weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, provided some support. Meanwhile, economic indicators in Germany remained mixed: GDP growth moderated towards the end of 2007, while unemployment continued to decline.

The fund marginally outperformed its benchmark and achieved first-quartile positioning over the review period. Stock selection in chemicals and technology companies boosted returns. In particular, shares in K+S benefited from higher potash prices, driven by favourable supply/demand conditions in the industry. Furthermore, a holding in industrial gas producer Linde contributed following the firm's encouraging results due to strong demand from emerging markets. Also contributing to fund performance was an underweight in banks, as they reported losses due to exposure to US mortgages and loans to commercial real estate. Conversely, a lack of exposure to Volkswagen proved detrimental amid speculation that Porsche intended to increase its stake in the former. Volkswagen shares, however, seem expensive, and weak consumer activity could hurt global automobile demand.

The manager has a bottom-up stock-picking approach, focusing on the quality of individual companies rather than on sectors. She moved to a sizeable underweight position in consumer discretionary firms, as it is currently more difficult to find growth opportunities in this space. Although she remains cautious about financials overall, she added exposure to insurance firms, such as Allianz and Munich Re. These stocks had fallen in line with banks, but their fundamental earnings outlook had not deteriorated to the same extent.

Global Consumer Industries Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 64 Million

Manager's Overview:

Consumer-related stocks saw a marked decline over the period and underperformed global equities overall. The fall was concentrated in businesses driven by discretionary spending, as investors preferred companies more resilient to sharp swings in expenditure. At a regional level, the outlook for the US consumer weakened substantially, and while consumer confidence also trended down in the UK, the slowdown here is expected to be less acute. In contrast, consumers in Emerging Markets remained strong in light of rising incomes in the region.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Stock selection in retailers proved beneficial, particularly internet retailers ASOS and Priceline.com, which generated healthy returns. Shares in ASOS, which specialises in replicas of celebrity outfits, rose after it announced that its annual profits, partially driven by encouraging sales of dresses and sunglasses, were likely to surpass estimates. Meanwhile, international bookings at online travel agency Priceline.com surged and its operations in the profitable European market expanded. Elsewhere, an exposure to LG Electronics added value. The firm introduced new mobile phone handsets, which boosted its sales and margins. An overweight in household & personal product businesses also contributed given their relative resilience to economic cycles. Conversely, selected media positions hurt performance. Investors shunned leading publisher R.H. Donnelley amid a deepening credit crisis because they were worried that one of its prominent shareholders – a hedge fund – would dispose of its holding in the firm. Losses at Carmike Cinemas also continued to grow due to its inability to draw audiences to its theatres. These two holdings were sold during the period.

Nicola Stafford took over the fund's management in January this year. Tobacco firms continue to represent the fund's biggest overweight positions. These businesses are enjoying robust demand and there are no input cost pressures currently. Positions in department stores and internet retailers were closed given the weakness in consumers' discretionary spending.

Global Financial Services Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 198 Million

Manager's Overview:

Financial stocks across the globe were the worst performers over the 12-month period. An increase in defaults on US sub-prime mortgages prompted a sharp decline in the value of mortgage-backed securities. Leading financial firms announced further write-downs on structured credit investments, which reduced the amount of money available for lending and led to a crisis in the credit markets. Major central banks also implemented a number of measures to improve liquidity in financial markets.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period and achieved first-quartile positioning among peers. An overweight in insurers proved beneficial, as the sell-off in these firms was less intense given their stable premium inflows. Germany's Munich Re and Italy's Generali were the key contributors. Munich Re's full-year results surpassed estimates, as investors appreciated its conservative investment practices, which generated a smaller write-down relative to peers. Meanwhile, Generali did not have any exposure to US sub-prime assets and the insurer's strong European franchise network held it in good stead. Elsewhere, capital market firms added value due to rewarding stock selection, aided by a below-benchmark stance, particularly in investment banks that announced write-downs to clean up their balance sheets. A holding in Standard Chartered Bank boosted returns from commercial banks. Investors viewed its notable presence in the Middle East and Asia positively, as consumer and business lending here is growing at a robust pace. Conversely, an exposure to Fannie Mae held back performance and the holding in this prominent US mortgage lender was sold after it recorded substantial losses due to the severity of the slump in the US housing market.

Tal Eloya took over the fund's management in February this year. The fund is now overweight insurers, as the manager expects the quality of their earnings to continue to surprise investors. The portfolio, however, remains significantly underweight banks, mainly in the US and the UK, where fundamentals are likely to deteriorate further as loan growth slows and credit costs rise.

Global Focus Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 115 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

The fund significantly outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Exposure to agro-chemicals firms Mosaic and Monsanto contributed, as strong prices of soft commodities buoyed demand for these companies' products. Elsewhere, a holding in CSL added value amid robust global demand for its blood plasma products and rising royalties paid by Merck. Meanwhile, increases in oil and gas prices, driven both by continued emerging market demand and by a limited supply-side response, supported the share prices of companies such as Petrobras. Woodside Petroleum gained from its exposure to the rapidly growing Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) market, where supply remained constrained.

Given the uncertain outlook for economic growth, the manager is overweight sectors such as consumer staples and utilities that are traditionally considered defensive. Key underweights include consumer discretionary stocks, industrials and financials, although the manager has been increasing positions in the latter as opportunities present themselves. The overweight in materials firms is concentrated in areas of strong demand growth, where the slowdown will have minimal impact. Also, despite attractively valued companies in the US, the manager remains underweight here, as she believes there are better opportunities elsewhere.

Global Health Care Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 203 Million

Manager's Overview:

After witnessing a correction in the period, the health care sector underperformed global equities. Investors remained concerned about large-cap pharmaceuticals, many of which are facing patent expiries on important portfolio drugs, and have low research and development productivity and weak pipelines. Moreover, the upcoming presidential elections in the US have created some uncertainty, bringing to the fore issues related to insurance affordability, coverage and long-term care, among others. The direction and scope of reforms, including price controls, depend on the outcome of the elections. These potentially negative influences, to some extent, undermined the traditionally defensive nature of the sector in the short term. At a sub-sector level, life science companies were the key gainers, while health care technologies lagged.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Biotechnology firm CSL was the top contributor, as it benefited from strong global demand for its blood plasma products and rising royalties paid by Merck on their cervical cancer vaccine. An underweight in key pharmaceutical stocks such as Pfizer and AstraZeneca also drove returns amid heightened generic competition for their products, as did a cautious stance towards managed-care firm WellPoint given that increased competition and rising medical costs put pressure on its margins. Conversely, a position in HealthNet detracted and this exposure was subsequently reduced because universal health insurance coverage in California failed to be implemented.

The manager increased the large US underweight to ensure that the fund was not overly exposed to the uncertain policy environment that is likely to persist prior to the 2008 elections. She remains underweight large-cap pharmaceutical firms, the majority of whose revenues are subject to generic competition and which do not have an adequately strong pipeline to mitigate this risk. Instead, she increased positions in companies, such as Roche, that have exposure to unique life-saving cancer drugs. At a sector level, health care equipment and supplies is the biggest overweight.

Global Industrials Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 249 Million

Manager's Overview:

Industrials stocks ended the period in negative territory, but outperformed global equities overall. The metals & mining sector contributed significantly, driven by strong commodity prices, continued takeover activity and a positive outlook despite uncertainty about the US economy and global growth. The surge in oil prices drove investors towards energy stocks. Construction and related firms, however, were among the worst performers, as the slump in the US housing market deepened, with signs of weakness surfacing in the commercial real estate segment as well.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. A holding in fertiliser firm Mosaic contributed on the strength of its robust profits, as farmers increased purchases of crop nutrients to boost yields and replenish global grain stockpiles. An overweight in mining companies also supported returns amid rising metal prices. In particular, a holding in diversified miner Rio Tinto was bolstered by a takeover bid from rival BHP Billiton. Moreover, it added aluminium to its portfolio by acquiring Alcan in Canada. Strong demand coupled with shortages led to an upbeat price outlook for coal and proved beneficial to the holding in Fording Canadian Coal Trust. Stock selection among oil & gas producers also added value amid strong oil prices. While Chinese oil firm CNOOC witnessed robust production growth and discovered new oil fields, Galp Energia acquired Exxon Mobil's distribution units in Spain and Portugal and strengthened its presence in its core market. Conversely, an exposure to electrical equipment manufacturers detracted; a holding in Siemens hurt performance and was pared after the industrial conglomerate announced a substantial write-down relating to legacy contracts.

Holdings in machinery businesses were reduced to an underweight (from an overweight) at the end of April due to concerns about receding margins given weaker demand and rising input costs, particularly of steel. To take advantage of the increase in metal and coal prices, the exposure to metals & mining firms was increased. Amit Lodha took over the fund's management in April 2008.

Global Property Fund ⁶

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 356 Million

Manager's Overview:

Property securities significantly underperformed global bonds and equities and ended the period in negative territory. Widespread defaults in housing loans by sub-prime borrowers in the US and the ensuing write-downs by financial institutions dampened investors' sentiment towards this capital-intensive sector. Major regions, with the exception of Emerging Markets, retreated. In many cases, the correction was indiscriminate, with investors tarring the residential for sale and the commercial markets with the same brush. Interest rate cuts in the US and the UK, however, combined with measures taken by major central banks to improve liquidity, had by the end of the period started to reassure investors. The forced selling of real estate stocks slowed and money started to flow back into property securities in some regions.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An exposure to key UK stocks detracted. Capital & Regional was impacted by concerns about its high debt levels, which investors felt might force it to dispose of properties at unattractive prices. Subsequently, this exposure was reduced. British Land also suffered a decline in asset value, although its revenues are secured via long-term leases and the near-term cost of debt is fixed. Elsewhere, weak execution at German firm Patrizia Immobilien hindered fund performance, as the company announced delays in its privatisation business. Given its high gearing and cash-related worries, the position was reduced. On a positive note, Hong Kong-based developer Kerry Properties was a key contributor, as it gained from property sales in China.

The fund is overweight the US, where securities are trading at significant discounts to their net asset value. The manager believes that while fundamentals have weakened, investors have become too pessimistic. Moreover, US REITs do not have exposure to single-family residential real estate and a significant portion of their cash flow is contractual. Meanwhile, the manager is underweight Japan, where the economic backdrop has deteriorated further, and he is also in the process of reducing exposure to the UK.

Global Sector Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 32 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Stock selection among financials proved unrewarding. An exposure to Fannie Mae was the biggest detractor. This prominent US mortgage lender recorded substantial losses due to the severity of the slump in the US housing market, and the holding was disposed of. Meanwhile, a position in Mitsubishi UFJ Financial hindered returns, as its earnings disappointed due partly to lacklustre credit growth in Japan versus other markets. This position, too, was later closed. Elsewhere, an exposure to UK retailer Marks & Spencer hurt performance amid weakness in consumer spending and rising competition in the food and clothing segments. The growing popularity of internet-based searches and falling margins at yellow pages publisher R.H. Donnelley disappointed investors. Stock selection among industrials, however, contributed. Holdings in energy and mining firms boosted returns amid surging commodity prices and robust demand.

The manager boosted the exposure to insurers given their stable revenues from premiums and their attractive valuations. This took the fund's financials allocation to overweight. While an underweight in industrials was retained, the focus shifted to coal producers, gold miners and steel manufacturers, which should benefit from healthy demand.

Global Technology Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 208 Million

Manager's Overview:

Although technology stocks ended the review period lower, they outperformed global equities. Structural drivers included product cycles relating to mobile phones, LCD televisions, notebook computers and gaming. Demand from Emerging Markets, with increased penetration and technology adoption, also supported growth. At a segment level, computers & peripheral companies were the key gainers, while office electronics and semiconductor & semiconductor equipment lagged. Towards the end of the period, stocks suffered due to concerns about weaker consumer and corporate spending amid slowing economic growth, especially in the US. Although traditionally perceived to be cyclical, this sector, however, has become less so as it has matured.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. A lack of exposure to IBM hurt relative returns, as investors perceived this to be a high quality stock amid buyback announcements. Its valuation and balance sheet versus other large caps, such as Hewlett-Packard, however, are less attractive. Elsewhere, within the semiconductor space, holdings in Marvell Technology and Broadcom also detracted, but while the former is likely to benefit from new product cycles and strong demand for storage products, the latter was sold. In contrast, a position in Apple added value on the strength of the firm's revamped product line and robust sales.

In light of slowing economic activity, the fund manager has been investing in more reasonably valued stocks with high quality business models and strong balance sheets versus both sector and history. At a regional level, the fund remains overweight in key Asian and emerging markets due to superior growth prospects in the region and a developing engineering talent pool. The manager believes Asian technology companies are increasingly gaining market share and moving up the value chain. He also favours companies more orientated towards faster-growing, developing end-markets, such as India and China, which are likely to maintain healthy growth rates due to rising domestic consumption and low product penetration rates.

Global Telecommunications Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 412 Million

Manager's Overview:

Although telecommunications stocks ended the review period lower, they outperformed global equities. Emerging Markets, where rising disposable incomes and a fairly benign regulatory environment have been conducive to growth, proved supportive. Conversely, a decrease in consumer spending, a sluggish economy and the initiation of a price war among wireless operators impacted service providers in the US. This happened despite substantial consolidation and capacity rationalisation over the past few years, which have significantly improved industry fundamentals. At a segment level, wireless companies, benefiting from the increased migration of customers from fixed to mobile telephony and higher wireless data usage, fared better than their fixed-line counterparts.

The fund marginally outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Holdings in emerging-market operators buoyed returns, as these firms were bolstered by robust subscriber additions in relatively under-penetrated markets. A cautious stance towards key European stocks also added value, as BT and Telecom Italia were hurt by increased competition and regulatory pressures. Conversely, positions in US service providers detracted. NII Holdings faced stiff competition in its largest market, Mexico, while Qwest Communications suffered from falling demand for fixed lines amid increased mobile phone usage. Moreover, the latter does not have a wireless unit to compensate for the loss at its fixed-line business. The allocation to both stocks was reduced.

Torsten Achtmann took over as fund manager in January this year. Torsten, like his predecessor, favours mobile over fixed-line operators due to slowing demand for traditional telecommunication services. Furthermore, the fast-growing Emerging Markets offer interesting investment opportunities and he remains significantly overweight in these regions at the expense of the US. Meanwhile, given the credit crunch and concerns over rising borrowing costs amid tighter lending conditions, he has reduced the fund's exposure to expensive and highly indebted companies.

Greater China Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 408 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by economic expansion and robust corporate performance, equities in the Greater China region generated positive returns over the period. Chinese equities advanced, as the economy continued to grow at a robust pace. Hong Kong stocks generated superior returns in light of improved liquidity. Meanwhile in Taiwan, markets retreated initially but generated strong returns towards the end of the review period, as the KMT party, perceived to be more pro-China and business-friendly, won the March presidential elections. Investors across the region, however, were concerned about inflation, largely a result of higher food and oil prices.

The fund significantly outperformed its benchmark over the review period, due largely to prudent stock selection in the energy sector. Positions in Bumi Resources and China Coal Energy benefited from an increase in coal prices. An overweight in the materials sector also boosted returns, as did a holding in Taiwan Fertilizer amid favourable election results. A position in Australia-based fertiliser maker Incitec Pivot also proved rewarding. Higher fertiliser prices, owing to strong demand from China, bolstered the stock. Moreover, an underweight in the weak performing information technology sector was supportive, although these gains were partially offset by an underweight exposure to banks and telecommunication services stocks. Banks performed well due to strong loan growth, whereas favourable regulatory developments and strong subscriber growth lifted the latter.

Over the period, the manager gradually consolidated the number of stocks held in the portfolio. He re-aligned the holdings in the Greater China region by reducing exposure to Hong Kong and by purchasing a number of Chinese stocks. Positions in the information technology sector were scaled back, as the segment is dependent on exports and faces global headwinds. In addition, a stronger NT dollar is hurting technology sector earnings in Taiwan. In contrast, the exposure to the telecommunications space was enhanced in light of stronger-than-expected domestic demand.

Iberia Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 470 Million

Manager's Overview:

Over the 12-month period, equities in the Iberian region outperformed the broader European market, although there were continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were encouraged by strong GDP growth rates, relatively sound corporate earnings and persistent takeover speculation. The Spanish economy continued to expand at a healthy pace in the fourth quarter of 2007, in contrast to the overall European economy where growth slowed. Portugal's fourth-quarter GDP, aided by a recovery in private consumption and in the construction sector, also increased strongly.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An underweight exposure to Telefonica was a major detractor from relative performance. This stock has approximately 17% weighting in the benchmark. In accordance with SICAV regulations, however, a maximum of 10% can be invested in any one stock in order to diversify risk. Rather than minimising the loss by holding 10% in Telefonica, the manager's approach is more proactive and he aims to generate better performance from other investments. On a positive note, holdings in energy companies proved beneficial, owing to higher oil prices. In particular, shares in Galp Energia rose due to the discovery of new oil fields.

Due to concerns that the Spanish economy could decelerate, the manager significantly reduced the exposure to consumer discretionary stocks and increased holdings in less cyclical areas, such as utilities. Elsewhere, he increased holdings in the energy sector, specifically in Repsol. The company should continue to benefit from rising oil prices and the potential for new oil field discoveries in Brazil. Conversely, the manager reduced the fund's exposure to the financial sector due to worries about a slowing economy and an increase in non-performing loans.

India Focus Fund ⁷

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 3,762 Million

Manager's Overview:

Despite occasional setbacks, Indian equities outperformed the broader Asia Pacific market over the period. Strong corporate profits, interest rate cuts in the US, upbeat economic data and stock market reforms drove share prices higher. Rising inflation and lower risk appetite among foreign institutional investors as well as profit taking at higher levels, however, precipitated a broader equity sell-off in 2008. Given investors' increased aversion to risk, defensive sectors outperformed the market. Utilities and consumer staples, for instance, fared better, whereas rate-sensitive segments, such as consumer discretionary, lagged. Real GDP grew by 8.4% year on year, falling from 8.9% in the previous three months. Nonetheless, inflation remained at the higher end of the Reserve Bank of India's comfort level of around 5%, prompting policy makers to maintain a tight monetary policy.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. A key detractor was an underweight in the energy sector, which was driven primarily by market momentum (something the manager does not base his investment decisions on). The manager believes valuations here are stretched and that investors are too optimistic about earnings that are being driven by projects still in their initial stages. A position in a financial software company that owns two commodity exchanges also proved detrimental. The manager is, however, convinced that its exchanges will witness sustained growth. Meanwhile, drug exporters were negatively impacted by a rupee appreciation. On a positive note, an overweight in software firms and stock selection in consumer staples contributed.

The manager disposed of names where valuations were high and rotated into more reasonably priced stocks, such as information technology firms. He believes that the global slowdown will encourage companies to cut expenses by outsourcing to low-cost destinations, such as India. The allocation to consumer-related sectors was increased in light of favourable underlying fundamentals, while a cautious stance towards energy and materials was maintained due to their high valuations.

Indonesia Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 369 Million

Manager's Overview:

Indonesian equities generated robust returns over the period, outperforming most markets in the region. The stocks were buoyed by strong domestic macroeconomic trends and favourable corporate earnings, underpinned by healthy growth in private consumption and substantial investments. Coal mining companies benefited from higher commodity prices, while capital goods firms were bolstered by rising capital investment. Plantation companies also gained from higher prices of palm oil. Against this backdrop, the economy grew by more than 6% in the first quarter of 2008 from a year ago. Consumer prices, however, increased sharply towards the end of the review period due to rising food prices.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period due largely to an overweight in energy stocks. A position in coal mining stocks Tambang Batubara Bukit Asam and Bumi Resources proved rewarding. These gains were underpinned by a positive outlook for coal prices, and significant merger and acquisition activity in the sector. Favourable stock selection in telecommunications companies also contributed. In particular, a holding in Bakrie Telecom boosted returns, as the firm's share price, helped by aggressive pricing and a new nationwide license, rose. Conversely, security selection in financials detracted, especially an exposure to property-management company Ciputra Surya, as profit taking hurt its stock price.

The manager was overweight telecommunications stocks in light of rapid growth driven by rural penetration and lower tariffs. He raised the overweight in the energy sector in order to take advantage of the rising crude oil prices and favourable market conditions. He, however, sold shares in two pharmaceutical companies, Kalbe Farma and Tempo Scan Pacific, which constituted the total health care allocation in the portfolio, a move prompted by cost pressures and concerns about lower earnings.

International Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 1,892 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Asset allocation, particularly an overweight in Europe, Emerging Markets and Pacific ex-Japan, contributed. An underweight in the UK and the US was also beneficial. In the European portion of the portfolio, holdings in chemicals firms catering to the buoyant agricultural commodities market supported performance. Meanwhile, an exposure to shipping-related stocks buoyed the returns of the Pacific ex-Japan holdings due to rising freight rates and vessel prices. Conversely, in the US segment, holdings in retailers detracted from returns amid concerns about a sharp slowdown in consumer spending.

The manager scaled back the exposure to European equities due to concerns about slower profit growth and a stronger euro. Moreover, the peripheral countries are weakening rapidly and high inflation leaves less room for the European Central Bank to reduce interest rates. In the defensive US market, the manager increased holdings while maintaining an underweight; here, the Federal Reserve's proactive stance could prompt a quicker recovery. Elsewhere, he remained overweight the Pacific ex-Japan region and enhanced the exposure to Emerging Markets, as their outlook remains positive.

Italy Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 430 Million

Manager's Overview:

Over the 12-month review period, Italian equities fell in tandem with the broader European market amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Concerns about the real estate and financial sectors also impacted market performance. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. Relatively strong corporate earnings and action taken by the ECB to inject money into the credit market, however, provided support. Economic indicators continued to be mixed: GDP growth in Italy moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An underweight exposure to the energy sector detracted from relative returns, as these firms benefited from rising oil prices. Holdings in the consumer durables & apparels sector also proved unfavourable amid slowing economic growth. In particular, shares in eyewear firm Safilo Group fell after it announced lower-than-expected corporate results. The manager, however, believes that sales growth will remain strong and that the consumer slowdown will have a limited impact on the firm due to its exposure to the high-end luxury segment. Shares in diversified financials firm Istituto Finanziario Industriale also retreated due to a correction in Fiat's share price, in which it has a 31% stake. On a positive note, holdings in capital goods companies proved favourable owing to strong growth in demand from emerging markets.

Over the period, the manager reduced holdings in commercial banks given the uncertainty surrounding the sector. Conversely, he increased the position in capital markets firm Mediobanca, which reported no exposure to leveraged buyout deals or sub-prime securities, and whose asset quality is good. At the same time, exposure to capital goods firms was increased, making it the largest overweight sector at end-April. This segment is expected to benefit from higher demand from emerging economies.

Japan Advantage Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: JPY 31,183 Million

Manager's Overview:

The Japanese market trended downwards for much of the period, hitting a multi-year low in mid-March 2008. Factors such as sluggish domestic demand, a stronger yen and a dependence on inflows from overseas investors weighed upon share prices. While easing credit concerns and a reversal in yen appreciation fuelled a late rally, Japan remained a relative laggard among developed markets. Over the period, domestic sectors suffered the steepest declines. Government policies aimed at improving regulation inadvertently stifled activity in the construction and consumer finance industries. In contrast, upstream sectors performed well.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. The fund's value-based approach found favour in a volatile market environment. Holdings in the other financing business, construction, chemicals, and banking sectors contributed. The single largest contributor was consumer finance company Acom, whose share price was buoyed by easing credit concerns and expectations for earnings upgrades. Convenience store operator Lawson also added value, as signs of improvement in its all-store daily sales and expectations of dividend increase drove its share price higher. In contrast, an exposure to NTT DoCoMo detracted from returns due to concerns about price competition within the mobile phone industry.

In what was an increasingly uncertain environment, the manager continued to focus on stocks that are undervalued relative to their balance sheet quality, cash flow, and earnings growth potential. He continued to favour cell phone companies and pharmaceuticals with high dividend yield while underweighting technology and auto exporters. However, he selectively added to positions in exporters whose share price valuations seemed to have already discounted the potential downside to earnings. An example is Bridgestone. The market declines since last summer have provided opportunities to invest in oversold, major banking groups whose balance sheets are healthier than their global peers', but the manager remains underweight this sector as a whole.

Japan Dividend Growth Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: JPY 6,724 Million

Manager's Overview:

The Japanese market trended downwards for much of the period, hitting a multi-year low in mid-March 2008. Factors such as sluggish domestic demand, a stronger yen and a dependence on inflows from overseas investors kept a lid on share prices. While easing credit concerns and a reversal in yen appreciation fuelled a late rally, Japan remained a relative laggard among developed markets. Over the period, domestic sectors suffered the steepest declines. Government policies aimed at improving regulation inadvertently stifled activity in the construction and consumer finance industries. In contrast, upstream sectors performed well.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. A bias towards defensive high-dividend-yield stocks proved rewarding during the second half of the review period when the market environment was extremely volatile. The advance, however, was not strong enough to recover the ground lost during the first half. The fund's lack of exposure to Nintendo eroded relative returns, as the firm ranked among the largest gainers over the last 12 months. Elsewhere, holdings in electric utilities and telecommunications companies detracted. On a positive note, an exposure to convenience stores, whose business is less sensitive to economic cycles, contributed to the fund's returns, both in absolute and in relative terms.

In an increasingly uncertain market environment, the manager has built a highly concentrated portfolio with fewer, albeit high-conviction, holdings. He remained defensive in his selection of companies, focusing on those that generate strong cash flows and have healthy balance sheets that are able to sustain a higher dividend payout. This is reflected in the fund's overweight exposure to the electric power & gas and information & communication sectors. While the manager reduced exposure to auto exporters in view of an increasingly clouded economic outlook in the US, he selectively added to positions in exporters whose share price valuations seemed to have already discounted the potential downside to earnings.

Over the period, domestic sectors suffered the steepest declines. Government policies aimed at improving regulation inadvertently stifled activity in the construction and consumer finance industries. In contrast, upstream sectors performed well.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. The strong performance of holdings in technology and commodity-related large caps that reported solid earnings contributed to returns. The top contributor was video game developer Nintendo. Its handheld device and innovative software remained immensely popular, while its next-generation console, the Wii, outsold its competitors. Japan's leading trading company, Mitsui, also added significant value. Its metals and energy businesses benefited from buoyant global demand and rising oil and metal prices. In contrast, the top detractors included condominium developers Haseko and Leoplace21. New building regulations delayed the booking of sales, and the rising cost of raw materials threatened their profit margins.

In what was an increasingly uncertain environment, the manager focused on large-cap blue chip companies that he believes have sound management, healthy balance sheets and the ability to generate strong free cash flows. He maintained overweight positions in internationally competitive companies among manufacturers of automobiles, office equipment, industrial machinery and electronics components. He sold selected holdings whose valuations looked stretched as a result of strong performance over the year. Instead, he added to positions in banks and in semiconductor equipment makers that had been sold down to extremely attractive valuations.

Japan Smaller Companies Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: JPY 19,541 Million

Manager's Overview:

The Japanese market trended downwards for much of the period, hitting a multi-year low in mid-March 2008. Factors such as sluggish domestic demand, the absence of political initiative, a stronger yen and a dependence on overseas investors undermined share prices. While easing credit concerns and a reversal in yen appreciation fuelled a late rally, Japan remained a relative laggard among developed markets. Over the period, small- and mid-sized companies continued to underperform large caps. Negative newsflow regarding domestic consumption, input costs and bankruptcies discouraged investors.

Over the period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Holdings among technology exporters, including Micronics Japan, Murata Manufacturing and Nippon Sheet Glass, eroded returns. A downturn in the TFT-LCD and semiconductor production cycles as well as yen appreciation weighed upon their share prices. Meanwhile, limited exposure to banking stocks also detracted from performance, as financial firms found favour towards the end of the review period amid easing credit concerns. In contrast, exposure to internet-shopping mall operator Rakuten proved rewarding, as it benefited from investor optimism about the potential for strong growth of its e-commerce and online advertising businesses. The strong performance of holdings in industrial machinery makers such as Daikin Industries and Komatsu – beneficiaries of robust demand from Asia – also provided a measure of downside support.

The manager continued to focus on attractively priced, small/mid-cap growth stocks. He reduced the fund's exposure to manufacturers of industrial machinery, electronic components and auto parts. The earnings outlook for these cyclical stocks deteriorated, as the risk of a global economic slowdown increased. Conversely, he added to the fund's positions in internet-related companies that are benefiting from the expansion of e-commerce markets. He also increased exposure to selected pharmaceutical companies expected to benefit from a potential market expansion of generic drugs due to the deregulation of the prescription drug market in Japan.

Korea Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 886 Million

Manager's Overview:

Korean equities ended the review period in positive territory, although they underperformed the MSCI AC Asia ex Japan Index. Persistent concerns that a US slowdown would impact regional exports and that the credit crisis would reduce capital availability subdued sentiment. Increasingly risk-averse overseas investors redeemed funds from regional markets, although this was partially offset by fund inflows from domestic investors. Consumer prices edged up due to rising oil, grain and commodity prices and the government proposed measures, including a cut in import tariffs on raw materials and fuel, to ease these pressures. Exports sustained their double-digit growth rate despite the US downturn. At a sector level, financial stocks gained due to expectations of deregulation and consolidation under the new political administration. Energy stocks also advanced, tracking the increase in oil prices.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Performance was boosted by an overweight in the industrials sector and stock selection in information technology companies. A key position in Taewoong, a large forging company, was the biggest contributor to returns, as the firm benefited from a surge in demand from manufacturers of ship engines and petrochemical plants. A holding in NHN, a major internet and games firm, was beneficial. Investors favoured the stock due to its strong position in the fast-growing online advertising market. In contrast, selected banks detracted, as slowing credit growth and weakening operating margins due to intense industry competition impacted these firms.

The manager maintains a well-diversified portfolio that includes both growth and value stocks. Over the period, he significantly scaled back the exposure to industrials. He took profits and trimmed holdings in some shipbuilders amid worries about rising costs of raw materials, such as steel, and slowing global demand. Meanwhile, he increased the allocation to consumer discretionary stocks, particularly LG Electronics, as the recent decline of the won against the US dollar is expected to boost its earnings.

Latin America Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 1,390 Million

Manager's Overview:

Latin America was among the best performing markets over the review period. Although equities in the region had initially fallen in line with major bourses, they were quick to recover, aided by rising oil and commodity prices. Brazil was the biggest beneficiary due to a new oil field discovery off its coast and rising prices of minerals and metals that supported local exporters. The commodity rally resulted in an increase in headline inflation, although favourable terms of trade boosted growth in several countries, driving above-trend GDP expansion. In response to rising inflation, Banco Central do Brasil raised the benchmark lending rate by half a percentage point, the first instance of monetary policy tightening in almost three years.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Two of the largest index components, oil company Petroleo Brasileiro and diversified mining group Vale do Rio Doce, held back fund performance, as their share prices advanced; the fund is structurally underweight these names. Several holdings in the consumer discretionary sector with promising growth stories were hurt by a short-term sell-off. An overweight in commercial banks also proved detrimental, as the sector saw weak performance due to the financial-market turmoil.

The outlook for Latin America remains subdued. Monetary policy tightening is expected to continue given the mounting inflationary pressures. In Brazil, higher interest rates could constrain personal spending, but the government's large infrastructure investment plans over the next four years should counter the potential economic impact of a global slowdown. The manager has increased exposure to materials stocks, as they are the likely beneficiaries of infrastructure spending in the region. He is still positive on the medium-term prospects for America Movil, but the overweight here was reduced slightly in the first quarter of this year. He also continues to believe that Brazilian banks, which were affected by indiscriminate sell-offs during the credit crisis, will benefit from the increasing prosperity in this region.

Malaysia Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 298 Million

Manager's Overview:

Malaysian equities generated positive returns over the 12-month period, although they underperformed most of their regional peers. Consumer prices, driven by higher food costs and toll rates, edged up. On the economic front, private consumption steadily spurred GDP growth, rural incomes rose due to higher commodity prices, and infrastructure and development programmes pushed up investments, with the prospect of higher overseas fund inflows. From a sector perspective, the telecommunications industry was buoyed by robust growth in subscriber base, and food product companies benefited from increased household consumption. Shares in the energy sector, supported by improved pricing power, also gained. Health care companies and utilities, however, were the key laggards.

The fund significantly outperformed its benchmark over the review period, due primarily to rewarding stock selection in consumer staples and energy companies. Overweight positions in the plantation space contributed due to sharply rising palm oil prices. A stake in energy equipment firm KNM yielded positive returns, owing to synergies from the acquisition of its subsidiary and a strong order pipeline. An underweight exposure to the weak performing utilities sector further supported relative returns. In contrast, an overweight in real estate companies has, in recent months, hindered performance due to subdued investor sentiment.

The manager remains overweight financials, as she believes that the sector remains relatively defensive due to healthy demand for small and medium enterprises and consumer loans, and due to sound asset quality. Moreover, dividend yields for several Malaysian banks are attractive compared to both the Malaysian market and their peers in other countries. The allocation in the telecommunications sector was also increased in light of buoyant domestic consumption. The manager, however, trimmed the exposure to the industrials sector amid worries about slowing global demand.

Nordic Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: SEK 3,485 Million

Manager's Overview:

Over the 12-month review period, equities in the Nordic region fell in tandem with the broader European market amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Economies in the region, however, remained resilient despite weakening global conditions, and GDP continued to expand at a healthy pace. Norway was the best performing Nordic market over the year in Swedish krona terms, followed by Finland, Denmark and Sweden.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Holdings in the chemicals sector were the largest contributor to relative performance. In particular, shares in fertiliser and industrial gas firm Yara International rose in light of higher demand and rising fertiliser prices. Given a strong order book, industrial goods firm ABB also boosted fund returns, as did a holding in tyre manufacturer Nokian Tyres. The latter reported strong corporate results and also confirmed a robust sales outlook for the first half of 2008. Conversely, an overweight position in Swedish clothing retailer Retail & Brands detracted from performance after the company experienced problems with its autumn collection. These issues have now been addressed, but they did have an adverse impact on current-year earnings.

The manager reduced the number of holdings in the portfolio to focus more on high-conviction stocks that delivered strong earnings results in the first quarter of 2008. He maintains a bottom-up stock-picking approach, concentrating on companies that operate in industries with long-term growth prospects and with the potential to build strong and sustainable business models. At the end of April, the manager was invested in companies that have significant exposure to fast-growing developing regions, such as India, China, the Middle East, Russia and the Baltic countries.

Pacific Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 1,130 Million

Manager's Overview:

In the first half of the review period, the Asia Pacific region posted strong returns, but gave up a large part of the gains in the second half amid global market turbulence. Investor sentiment deteriorated rapidly due to concerns about a slowdown in demand from the US, rising inflationary pressures and any potential impact of the global credit market crisis on the Asian Pacific financials sector. China was the best performing market, while Japanese stocks remained the laggard in the region. At a sector level, rising oil and commodity prices fuelled the strong performance of energy and materials firms, while the credit crunch tempered the returns of banking stocks.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Stock selection was particularly disappointing in Japan where holdings in small caps detracted from performance. However, sizable underweighting in this country helped to more than offset the impact of unfavourable stock picks, as shares here underperformed equities in the rest of the region. Other countries where stock picking proved unrewarding included Taiwan and Hong Kong. On a positive note, holdings in India added value. By sector, financials held back returns, while industrials were the biggest contributor. In general, a number of small- and mid-cap holdings relinquished their strong earlier gains amid a general pull-back in the markets.

Although the portfolio is built with a bottom-up stock-picking approach, the net effect of these stock decisions is a significant underweight in Japan. Over the period, the manager further trimmed the fund's exposure to Japanese automakers and other companies that depend on the US for a major portion of their sales. Elsewhere, key stock selection themes that had proved rewarding over the past few years remained valid. The manager continued to favour infrastructure firms, beneficiaries of strong trends in both hard and soft commodities – especially service providers – and companies positioned to benefit from the general growth in consumer spending and the rise of the middle class in China, India and other emerging countries in Asia.

Singapore Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 262 Million

Manager's Overview:

Singaporean equities recorded positive returns over the 12-month period, although they underperformed most of their regional peers. Stocks were weighed down by weaker-than-expected economic indicators in the US (a key customer for exports) and write-downs by global financial institutions. Technology hardware manufacturers weakened due to a dip in electronics exports, while increasing worries about global credit markets proved a drag on property stocks. Low unemployment levels and real interest rates, however, underpinned earnings in consumption-related sectors. Moreover, shares in energy equipment & offshore services companies benefited from strong fundamentals and new contracts. Against this backdrop, the Singaporean economy grew at a brisk pace over the review period, although inflationary pressures have come to the fore since the beginning of this year.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period, due largely to an overweight exposure to the industrials sector. Investors favoured these stocks because of their upbeat earnings outlook and reasonable valuations. Also adding value was security selection in the telecommunications sector, particularly Singapore Telecommunications, which was bolstered by higher-than-expected earnings. An underweight in insurance companies further aided relative returns. Conversely, amid subdued investor sentiment, an exposure to companies related to consumer services detracted, as did a position in shipbuilder COSCO, due to concerns that a sharp rise in steel prices could put pressure on margins.

The manager retained significant holdings in financials, although they were lower than the benchmark's. She is of the view that the exposure to collateral debt obligations is manageable and that these firms are still enjoying solid loan growth and stable asset quality. Valuations, too, have come down to reasonable levels after the recent sell-off. Meanwhile, given the increased market volatility, the manager added to positions in telecommunications and health care owing to their steady income streams. The exposure to consumer-related stocks, however, was trimmed.

South East Asia Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 4,590 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, South East Asian equities outperformed their global counterparts over the last 12 months. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility during the second half of the period amid concerns that a US slowdown would impact regional exports. Chinese stocks were the best performers, as the economy continued to witness low double-digit growth. Meanwhile, improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections boosted the performance of Thai equities. Meanwhile, Indian markets were buoyed by upbeat corporate profits. The energy and materials sectors benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, although a global credit crisis that reduced capital availability tempered the returns of banking stocks.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period due primarily to an overweight in the better performing Chinese market and because of prudent stock selection in Singapore, Taiwan and Korea. An exposure to some shipping and shipbuilding stocks proved rewarding due to rising freight rates and a strong trend in vessel prices. In Korea, the manager maintained an overweight in a number of engineering and construction stocks, which benefited from increased order flow from Asian emerging markets. An underweight in Thailand, however, was the biggest detractor, as equities here rose in the last quarter of 2007.

In light of the increasing volatility, the manager reduced some of the more aggressive overweight positions held through 2007. In particular, overweights in industrials were trimmed to underweights. Holdings in Korean engineering & construction companies, such as Hyundai Engineering, were sold in anticipation of a moderation in their domestic housing development businesses. A position in Hong Kong-based COSCO Pacific was closed because concerns over a global slowdown made its container manufacturing and leasing businesses less attractive. Conversely, the manager raised exposure to sectors, such as telecommunication services and utilities, that are driven by internal demand.

Switzerland Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: CHF 767 Million

Manager's Overview:

Over the 12-month period, Swiss equities fell in tandem with the broader European market amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation in the eurozone has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's 2% target. Relatively strong corporate earnings and exposure to global economic growth, however, provided support. The Swiss economy remained resilient in the last quarter of 2007, despite weakening global conditions, and GDP continued to expand at a healthy pace. The unemployment rate in the country also fell.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period and was ranked in the first quartile among peers. Holdings in the materials sector contributed strongly, particularly shares in Syngenta, a producer of fertiliser and crop science products. Food price inflation and a shortage of arable land have increasingly forced farmers to seek better yields and this has driven demand for crop science products. A lower-than-benchmark exposure to diversified financials firms including UBS and Credit Suisse also proved favourable. Conversely, an underweight exposure to food producer Nestlé was a key detractor from relative returns. The company comprises approximately 22% of the benchmark. In accordance with SICAV regulations, however, a maximum of 10% can be invested in any one stock in order to diversify risk.

Jonathan Ogier took over the management of the fund from Alex Zavratsky on 1 April 2008. Like Alex, he is a bottom-up stock picker and expects to hold 30-50 stocks. At the end of April, the fund had an overweight position in materials and capital goods firms and an underweight in the food beverage & tobacco sector. Meanwhile, he reduced the underweight in financials, as market conditions improved.

Taiwan Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 582 Million

Manager's Overview:

Equities in Taiwan recorded robust returns over the 12-month period, outperforming the MSCI Asia Pacific ex-Japan Index. In the first half of the review period, however, subdued investor confidence amid concerns about a slowdown in US demand and the potential fallout of the global credit market crisis hurt equities, although sentiment improved after the KMT party won both the Legislative Yuan and the Presidential elections early this year. All sectors ended the period in positive territory. Materials stocks advanced, tracking the rise in oil and commodity prices. Providers of telecommunication services and manufacturers of durable goods benefited from better consumer sentiment, while real estate stocks were bolstered by a post-elections improvement in the outlook for the urban property market. The economy reported strong GDP growth, even as inflation, led by an up-tick in food and oil prices, nudged up.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period, owing largely to favourable stock selection in the materials sector. In particular, a position in Taiwan Fertilizer aided returns due to an increase in its land value after the elections and a strong trend in fertiliser prices. A position in Far Eastern Department Stores also contributed, as the retailer continued to see robust growth in its Chinese operations. Conversely, limited exposure to High Tech Computer, a manufacturer of pocket PCs and smartphones, hurt relative returns, as higher sales expectations for its third-generation (3G) phones boosted its share price. An underweight exposure to telecommunications also proved detrimental given the solid performance of companies in this sector, driven by steady domestic demand.

Over the review period, the manager raised exposure to financials in view of attractive valuations and potential merger and acquisition opportunities within the sector. In contrast, he scaled back the holdings in the materials sector given expectations that higher raw material costs would cut into companies' profit margins.

Thailand Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 964 Million

Manager's Overview:

Equities in Thailand significantly outperformed their regional peers over the review period. There were, however, periods of high volatility due to concerns about a slowdown in the US, the country's key export market, in light of weak housing data and sub-prime mortgage defaults. Real GDP, driven by robust domestic demand, grew at a healthy pace. Moreover, private consumption was boosted by the government's consumption stimulus programmes. Shares in oil producers advanced, tracking the rise in crude prices. Banking stocks were buoyed by an increase in credit demand, particularly from the corporate sector. Exports remained robust on the strength of higher sales of electronics, automobiles and frozen seafood, and import growth edged up due to solid demand for capital and consumer goods, reflective of the underlying strength in internal consumption. Finally, consumer prices rose sharply due to a rise in food and energy prices.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark, owing to an underweight position in the materials sector. Of note, a lower-than-benchmark exposure to petrochemicals producer PTT Chemical weighed upon relative returns, as the company benefited from a sharp rise in product prices and a strong dividend yield. Holdings in premium-class private hospitals were also a drag because their earnings growth did not meet analysts' expectations. Relative performance was further impacted by a low exposure to oil & gas company PTT Exploration & Production, which profited from rising energy prices. On a positive note, an overweight in the financials sector boosted returns, as banks reported healthy growth in loans.

On 1 April 2008, Anthony SIOM took over the management of the fund. He remains underweight in the health care sector in view of rising competition from neighbouring countries, a slowing growth outlook and rich valuations. The exposure to materials stocks was trimmed due to slowing earnings growth. Anthony SIOM has, however, maintained a high exposure to financials, where valuations are encouraging, and continues to favour the telecommunications sector.

United Kingdom Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: GBP 95 Million

Manager's Overview:

The UK stock market declined over the review period, due mainly to the fallout of the turmoil in the sub-prime mortgage market and the resultant credit crunch. Moreover, there were increasing fears about an economic slowdown, especially in the latter half of the review period, as the housing market and consumer-related sectors witnessed further signs of deceleration. Nevertheless, takeover activity and strong oil prices provided some support. In light of the credit market crisis, however, economic growth projections have weakened, prompting the Bank of England to cut its interest rate three times starting December 2007, to the current level of 5.0%.

Over the period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An underweight exposure to mining stocks, notably Rio Tinto, detracted from relative returns, as takeover talks and strong metal prices drove these shares higher. Nonetheless, fears of a recession in the US are expected to curtail demand for metals. An overweight in property-related support services firms also proved detrimental due to concerns about a slowdown in housing activity. Elsewhere, a holding in fashion retailer Burberry hurt returns on account of a deteriorating outlook for personal spending. On a positive note, a holding in BG Group contributed. Shares in this gas producer rose amid an upbeat outlook for production growth, while higher oil and gas prices further supported investor sentiment. An underweight in banks also aided relative performance, as concerns about the impact of the credit crisis dragged these shares lower.

Matthew Siddle took over the fund's management on 2 April 2008. He looks for quality companies, such as support services firms and utilities, which are attractively valued, with strong balance sheets and less volatile earnings. The fund remains underweight the banking sector, as further write-downs could be necessary and lending growth might slow. The manager is also underweight travel and leisure companies owing to the increased pressure on consumer spending.

World Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 791 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, markets in the Pacific ex-Japan region, Europe, the UK, the US and Japan retreated in euro terms.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. In terms of asset allocation, the portfolio's bias towards Continental Europe, which outperformed other developed markets, and an underweight position in the UK buoyed relative returns. An underweight in the US and an off-benchmark exposure to Emerging Markets also added value. Elsewhere, in the European segment of the portfolio, holdings in chemicals firms catering to the buoyant agricultural commodities market supported performance. Conversely, in the US segment, holdings in retailers detracted from returns amid concerns about a sharp slowdown in consumer spending.

The manager scaled back the exposure to European equities over the period due to concerns about slower profit growth, and a stronger euro, which is hurting export-orientated companies. Moreover, the peripheral countries are weakening rapidly and high inflation leaves less room for the European Central Bank to reduce interest rates. In the defensive US market, the manager increased holdings while maintaining an underweight position. Here, the Federal Reserve's proactive stance could prompt a quicker recovery. Elsewhere, he enhanced the exposure to Pacific ex-Japan and Emerging Markets, as their outlook remains positive.

Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, markets in the Pacific ex-Japan region, Europe, the UK, the US and Japan retreated in euro terms.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Positions in retail and energy stocks hurt the returns from the US segment. In contrast, security selection in Europe and in the Pacific ex-Japan region proved beneficial. In the former, holdings in chemicals firms catering to the buoyant agricultural commodities market added value, while in the latter, an exposure to shipping-related stocks was rewarding due to rising freight rates and a strong trend in vessel prices. In terms of asset allocation, an overweight exposure to equities in Pacific ex-Japan, which outperformed most other regions, contributed, as did a below-benchmark holding in the US.

The exposure to European equities was increased over the period. The manager believes that increased domestic orders and external demand from the fast-growing Emerging Markets should mitigate the impact of a US slowdown. Meanwhile, he scaled back positions in the UK and in Japan where macroeconomic fundamentals are continuing to deteriorate. In the defensive US market, he increased the holdings while maintaining an underweight position. Here, the Federal Reserve's proactive stance could prompt a quicker recovery. Elsewhere, he retained the bias towards Pacific ex-Japan and enhanced the exposure to Emerging Markets, as their outlook remains positive.

Fidelity Gestion Equilibre ^{1,4}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 30 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over the review period, which was marked by a credit crunch, the result of high default rates in the US sub-prime market. Concerns about the impact of the crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, other major markets retreated in euro terms. European government bonds generated positive returns, as investors stayed away from risky assets. Investment-grade and high-yield bonds fared poorly due to a widening of credit spreads.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. In the fixed income segment, which constitutes 58% of the portfolio, an exposure to corporate bonds detracted amid a significant widening of credit spreads. The prices of these bonds should, however, normalise back to levels reflecting the high quality of the issuers. In contrast, the European and Pacific ex-Japan equity holdings added value. In terms of asset allocation, an underweight in the US proved rewarding, as did an overweight in Pacific ex-Japan and Europe, which outperformed most other regions.

At the end of the period, the portfolio was overweight equities, whose valuations were attractive, at the expense of bonds. Within the equity segment, the exposure to Europe was enhanced. The manager believes that increased domestic orders and external demand from the fast-growing Emerging Markets should mitigate the impact of a US slowdown. Meanwhile, he scaled back positions in the UK and Japan where macroeconomic fundamentals are continuing to deteriorate. In the defensive US market, he increased the holdings while maintaining an underweight. Here, the Federal Reserve's proactive stance could prompt a quicker recovery. Elsewhere, he retained the bias towards the Pacific ex-Japan region and enhanced exposure to Emerging Markets, as their outlook remains positive.

Fidelity Sélection Europe ^{1,4}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 61 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators in the region continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An underweight in firms that benefited from bid activity, such as Rio Tinto and Volkswagen, detracted. Although the former has been added to the portfolio in view of its low dependence on economic cycles, there is still no exposure to Volkswagen, as weak consumer activity could diminish global demand for automobiles. Conversely, chemicals holdings, such as K+S and Israel Chemicals, catering to the buoyant agricultural commodities market, added value. Supply remained tight, while the requirement for better yields from agricultural land and increased crop plantation for biofuels drove demand for their products. A cautious stance towards banks also boosted relative returns, as these firms suffered losses due to their exposure to risky loans.

The fund invests in a range of Fidelity Funds covering the European markets, wherein the underlying fund managers follow different investment styles. The portfolio is underweight financials, as a deteriorating environment, from both an economic and financial perspective, raises concerns about these firms' earnings prospects. The portfolio is exposed to the rapid economic growth of developing countries through positions in miners, while there is a bias towards chemicals in light of supportive supply/demand conditions for their products.

Fidelity Sélection Internationale ^{1,4}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 167 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, markets in the Pacific ex-Japan region, Europe, the UK, the US and Japan retreated in euro terms.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. In the UK segment, an overweight in the technology sector hurt the returns; share prices of firms declined due to their weak earnings outlook. Meanwhile, the US holdings detracted due mainly to positions in retail stocks, whose earnings fell as the economic environment worsened. In contrast, the European equity segment boosted returns. At a sector level, holdings in the industrials sector were rewarding. Here, energy and mining companies benefited from rising commodity prices.

Over the period, the manager maintained an overweight position in European equities, as he believes increased domestic orders and external demand from the fast-growing Emerging Markets will mitigate the impact of a US slowdown. He also maintained an underweight in the US, where the housing market and consumer sentiment continued to weaken. Meanwhile, positions in the UK and Japan were scaled back in light of deteriorating macroeconomic fundamentals. Elsewhere, the manager retained the bias towards Pacific ex-Japan and enhanced the exposure to Emerging Markets, as their outlook remains positive.

FPS Defensive Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 83 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid concerns that the credit crisis could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. European government bond markets, benefiting from investors' shunning risky assets, generated positive returns over the 12-month period. Conversely, investment-grade corporate bonds and high-yield securities fared poorly, as credit spreads widened through most of the period.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark, due mainly to the fixed income and cash components of the portfolio. A key detractor was the cash portion, which is currently invested in high-rated money market instruments and in short-term debt, such as asset-backed securities (ABS) and bank debt, in order to seek yields higher than short-term rates. In particular, holdings in ABS hurt returns, as downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. The quality of these assets, however, is good and they should offer strong returns in the medium term. An exposure to emerging-market bonds also hurt the returns of the fixed income portion, as investors' risk appetite diminished. Meanwhile, within the equity segment, a lack of exposure to mining firms and a holding in low-cost airline Ryanair, whose profit outlook was hurt by rising oil prices, undermined performance.

At the end of the period, the portfolio was neutral equities. Elsewhere, the manager retained the overweight in cash and the underweight in bonds for defensive reasons because inflationary pressures could adversely impact government bond prices.

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Stock selection in oil & gas firms and an overweight in technology stocks hurt the returns of the UK segment. Meanwhile, the US equity holdings detracted, due mainly to positions in retail stocks, whose earnings fell as the economic environment worsened. In contrast, the European segment contributed. At a sector level, holdings in industrials were rewarding, as energy and mining companies benefited from rising commodity prices. Asset allocation also buoyed returns. A bias towards Europe and Pacific ex-Japan aided returns, as did an underweight in the UK, the US and Japan. An off-benchmark exposure to Emerging Markets was also rewarding.

The manager scaled back the overweight in Europe, as the region is most at risk of an economic slowdown after the US. Meanwhile, holdings in the defensive US market were increased. Here, the Federal Reserve's proactive stance could prompt a quicker recovery. Positions in Japan were reduced in light of deteriorating macroeconomic fundamentals. Elsewhere, the manager retained the bias towards Pacific ex-Japan and enhanced exposure to Emerging Markets, as their outlook remains positive.

FPS Growth Fund

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, markets in the Pacific ex-Japan region, Europe, the UK, the US and Japan retreated in euro terms.

The fund marginally underperformed its benchmark over the review period. In the UK segment, security selection in oil & gas firms detracted, as did an exposure to technology stocks. A lack of exposure to selected mining stocks hurt the performance of the European segment, as continued demand for metals supported share prices. Stock selection in Pacific ex-Japan, the US and Japan added value, and asset allocation, with the bias towards Europe and an underweight in the UK, also contributed. Moreover, an off-benchmark exposure to Emerging Markets proved rewarding.

The manager scaled back the overweight in Europe due to concerns about slower profit growth and a stronger euro. The peripheral countries are also weakening rapidly and high inflation leaves less room for the European Central Bank to reduce interest rates. The US holding was increased from underweight to neutral, as it is a defensive market that tends to perform strongly during periods of stock market weakness. Further, the Federal Reserve's proactive stance in cutting interest rates and taking additional steps to improve liquidity could prompt a quicker recovery. Elsewhere, the manager enhanced exposure to Emerging Markets, as the outlook here remains positive.

FPS Moderate Growth Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 205 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over the review period, which was marked by a credit crunch, the result of high default rates in the US sub-prime market. Concerns about the impact of the crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, other major markets retreated in euro terms. European government bonds generated positive returns, benefiting from investors' shunning risky assets. Investment-grade and high-yield bonds fared poorly, as credit spreads widened.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Holdings in asset-backed securities detracted after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. The quality of these assets, however, is good and they should offer solid returns in the medium term. An exposure to emerging-market bonds also hurt returns, as investors' risk appetite diminished. In contrast, stock selection in Europe and the Pacific ex-Japan region was rewarding. In terms of asset allocation, an overweight in Europe and Emerging Markets added value, as did underweight positions in the UK and Japan.

The manager retained the overweight in equities and the underweight in bonds, as the market decline had brought equity valuations down to reasonable levels. Inflationary pressures could also have an adverse impact on government bond prices. Meanwhile, the portfolio was overweight cash for defensive reasons. The European equity overweight was reduced, since the region is most at risk of a slowdown after the US. Towards the end of the period, holdings in the defensive US market were raised. Here, the Federal Reserve's proactive stance could prompt a quicker recovery. Elsewhere, the exposure to Emerging Markets was augmented, while positions in the UK and Pacific ex-Japan were closed.

FPS Sterling Growth Fund ^{1,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: GBP 31 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, European bourses generated positive returns in sterling terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. In terms of stock selection, an overweight in the technology sector hurt the returns of the UK holdings. Here, share prices of firms declined due to their discouraging earnings outlook. In the European segment, holdings in smaller companies hindered returns owing to their weak performance over the volatile period. Meanwhile, positions in retail stocks, whose earnings fell as the economic environment worsened, hurt the performance of the US portion of the portfolio. Conversely, asset allocation contributed, with an underweight in Japan and an above-benchmark exposure to Pacific ex-Japan and to Emerging Markets adding value.

The manager increased the exposure to the UK market, which has a large weighting in oil & gas stocks in the index and is traditionally viewed as a defensive market. Meanwhile, he scaled back the European overweight, as the region is most at risk of an economic slowdown after the US. He also increased the underweight in the US, where the housing market and consumer sentiment are continuing to deteriorate. Elsewhere, he retained the bias towards the Pacific ex-Japan region and enhanced exposure to Emerging Markets, as their outlook remains positive.

Euro Balanced Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 970 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Benefiting from a flight to safety as investors shunned risky assets, European government bond markets generated positive returns. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the European Central Bank kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June. The last 12 months were characterised by a rise in headline inflation, tight credit conditions, an unwinding of structured transactions and forced selling by leveraged investors such as hedge funds.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Within the bond portion, an overweight in corporate debt detracted amid a considerable widening of credit spreads. On a positive note, the fund benefited from its active duration management and European yield curve steepening trade. Within the equity segment, selected companies that create opportunities for growth from within buoyed returns. Shares in K+S and Israel Chemicals were boosted by supportive demand/supply conditions, while E.ON and Électricité de France found favour due to an optimistic outlook for power prices. Conversely, fears of losses related to risky loans adversely impacted selected bank holdings, such as Italy's UniCredit.

Within the bond portion, the manager retained an overweight in Eastern European emerging markets and asset-backed securities. The names held in the portfolio continue to generate inflows, are of relatively short maturity, and have low credit risk. The manager steadily increased exposure to government paper over the year in light of the deepening credit crisis. The equity portion of the fund is overweight energy companies, with an exposure to oil refiners that should benefit from rising margins. Conversely, the manager remains underweight banks, although she found reasonably valued opportunities in this sector towards the end of the period.

Growth & Income Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 105 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. The exposure of the bond funds to asset-backed securities detracted, after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. These holdings, however, are of good quality and there has been no material deterioration in their fundamentals. Conversely, tactical asset allocation through the phases of the economic cycle contributed. Within equities, a move out of financials was rewarding, as they lagged other sectors. Meanwhile, enhanced exposure to industrials aided returns. Energy and mining companies here benefited from rising commodity prices. Elsewhere, a bias towards Europe and Pacific ex-Japan added value, as did an underweight in the UK, the US and Japan.

At the end of the period, the portfolio was overweight bonds and cash at the expense of equities given that economic growth is likely to slow. At a sector level, it was defensively positioned with a bias towards the telecommunications, industrials and health care sectors and an underweight in financials and technology. Meanwhile, the manager was more optimistic about the growth prospects of Pacific ex-Japan and Emerging Markets than he was about developed markets.

Asian High Yield Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 315 Million

Manager's Overview:

The Asian high-yield market ended the review period lower, generating negative returns. This resulted largely from the market's poor sentiment towards corporate bonds following the massive write-downs relating to sub-prime losses, which prompted a dramatic widening of global credit spreads. Against this backdrop, Asian high-yield bonds proved more resilient than US and European high-yield securities, which bore the brunt of the initial spread widening. At the start of 2008, however, Asian high-yield securities, too, succumbed to sustained weakness in the equity markets. Consequently, the Merrill Lynch Asian High Yield Index generated a return of -4.3% over the first quarter of this year. Following the rescue of beleaguered US bank Bear Stearns, sentiment improved strongly and the Asian high-yield market rebounded in April to return 2.7%, although it ended the 12-month review period with a return of -1.5%.

The fund underperformed its benchmark over the review period. A key detractor was an overweight in property, as investors sought to reduce their exposure to this sector in China on account of the potential supply overhang of new issues in the segment and due to the government's austerity measures aimed at slowing growth. Yields on BB-rated names, such as Agile and Hopson, thus increased to levels approaching 20%. The manager, however, remains convinced about the strength of their fundamentals.

The outlook for Asian corporate fundamentals remains positive. The rapid widening of spreads has made the fund's running yield increasingly attractive, at close to 10%. Therefore, the manager believes Asian high-yield securities are in good shape on a relative value basis given the considerable downside protection provided by the yields on offer. He also continues to look for buying opportunities to take advantage of the cheaper levels currently, particularly for the preferred names that have suffered indiscriminately from the wider market moves.

Emerging Market Debt Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 289 Million

Manager's Overview:

The period was marked by significant volatility, as the sub-prime crisis unfolded in the US and few markets across the globe were spared the residual impact of contracting liquidity. These countries continued to benefit from improving fundamentals due to rising commodity prices, increasing foreign currency reserves, improving current accounts, a reduction in debt levels and low US Treasury yields. Moreover, driven increasingly by internal demand, Emerging Markets have experienced five consecutive years of GDP growth in excess of 5%. These structural improvements have made them less susceptible to the economic slowdown in developed countries. Consequently, this asset class performed better than many developed market peers over the period.

Since its launch in October 2007, the fund has underperformed its benchmark. Performance was negatively impacted by underweight positions in higher quality sovereign bonds (Brazil, Mexico, Malaysia), which outperformed as yield spreads widened over the period. Corporate bond exposure, particularly in Russian companies, also detracted amid heightened risk aversion. Meanwhile, political risks undermined an overweight in Venezuela. On a positive note, an underweight in Turkey contributed, as the political landscape here became more uncertain. Holdings in Ivory Coast securities were beneficial in light of strong bond performance. A small exposure to emerging-market equities also proved rewarding.

The manager continues to be overweight external sovereign issues with a running yield advantage to the index. He also holds positions in emerging-market corporate bonds and equities related to this region. He gained exposure to the African sovereign bonds of Gabon and Ghana and increased positions in Ivory Coast. Holdings in Venezuela were also increased after bonds here struggled through most of the period. Meanwhile, the exposure to Brazil and Peru was reduced due to better opportunities elsewhere.

Euro Bond Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 1,255 Million

Manager's Overview:

Benefiting from a flight to safety as investors shunned risky assets, European government bond markets generated positive returns over the 12 months. During this period, the European Central Bank increased interest rates once, in June, and thereafter kept them on hold. The last 12 months were characterised by a rise in headline inflation, driven by surging commodity prices, tight credit conditions resulting from the financial market turmoil, an unwinding of structured transactions and forced selling by leveraged investors such as hedge funds. These headwinds dampened sentiment, and investors became increasingly averse to risk. Subsequently, investment-grade corporate bonds and high-yield securities fared poorly, since credit spreads widened through most of the period.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An overweight in corporate bonds detracted amid a considerable widening of credit spreads. The credit crunch caused significant asset deterioration in some areas of the asset-backed securities (ABS) and financials sectors, which dampened sentiment. The ABS in the portfolio saw considerable stress in pricing, which resulted in all assets being indiscriminately written down. On a positive note, the fund benefited from its active duration management and European yield curve steepening trade. Yields on short-dated bonds fell, while those on long-dated paper rose.

Although traditionally underweight government bonds, the manager steadily increased exposure to government paper over the year in light of the deepening credit crisis. Within the credit market, the fund was overweight financials by the end of the review period and had an above-benchmark exposure to Lower Tier 2 issues given their attractive valuations. The manager also retained an overweight in Eastern European emerging markets and in ABS; the names held in the portfolio continue to generate inflows, are of relatively short maturity, and have low credit risk. He increased the overweight in euro inflation-linked bonds, as inflation remained a major concern in the eurozone amid rising energy and food prices.

Euro Short Term Bond Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 36 Million

Manager's Overview:

The review period was marked by mounting headline inflation, an unwinding of structured transactions and forced selling by leveraged investors such as hedge funds. The credit crisis prompted significant write-downs by banks, resulting in a series of downgrades from rating agencies and signs that the reduction in credit availability was beginning to tell on both small businesses and households. Asset-backed securities (ABS) and financials were the key sectors hit amid aggressive discounting in a market where investor sentiment, rather than underlying credit quality, determined prices. Co-ordinated liquidity intervention from major central banks, however, helped to alleviate some of the funding pressures. Meanwhile, the European Central Bank (ECB) increased its interest rates once, in June, and thereafter kept them on hold, although it remained concerned about rising price pressures.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. The credit crunch caused significant asset deterioration in some areas of the ABS and financial sectors, which dampened sentiment. Consequently, an exposure to ABS and banks, regardless of the quality of underlying assets within the portfolio, was the primary cause of the weak performance. Meanwhile, the manager took strategic duration positions, reflecting his views on the varying direction of yields in the region, both before and after the impact of the credit crisis. Earlier in the period, he held a short-duration position in a rising interest rate environment, which proved beneficial. By the end of the period, he had moved to a long-duration stance on his belief that the ECB would lower rates before the end of the year.

The manager remains overweight ABS because he believes this sector represents an attractive investment opportunity on a relative value basis. Continued central bank support, in terms of accommodative interest rates and commitment to funding, partially resuscitated the credit market in April. With the portfolio currently running a significant yield premium versus the benchmark, this improvement should boost investors' returns in future.

European High Yield Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 1,013 Million

Manager's Overview:

Benefiting from a flight to safety as investors shunned risky assets, European government bond markets generated positive returns over the last 12 months. During this period, the European Central Bank increased its interest rates once, in June, and thereafter kept them on hold. The review period was characterised by a rise in headline inflation, driven by surging commodity prices, tight credit conditions resulting from the financial market turmoil, an unwinding of structured transactions and forced selling by leveraged investors such as hedge funds. This dampened sentiment and investors became increasingly averse to risk. Subsequently, investment-grade corporate bonds and high-yield securities fared poorly, as credit spreads widened through most of the period.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Security selection was the key driver of returns, with names including Nordic bus group Concordia Bus, Russian bank VTB and lead recycler Eco Bat boosting performance. From an asset allocation perspective, the fund's defensive positioning, which included a slight exposure to government debt at the expense of high-yield bonds, contributed. Government-issued debt outperformed high-yield and investment-grade bonds following a widening of spreads amid increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turbulence. Conversely, bonds in emerging Eastern Europe detracted, as they underperformed the wider market due to a decrease in risk appetite.

Volatility in high-yield markets is likely to stay high in the near term but the widening of spreads has restored value to European high-yield bonds. With this in mind, the fund manager increased credit risk levels over the period, albeit from a defensive base. The fund is underweight consumer-orientated companies, as the manager is cautious about the outlook for consumer spending, both in Europe and globally. Overall, the fund is highly diversified across sectors and remains focused on companies with limited re-financing needs, an improving credit profile and a short to medium-term payment horizon.

International Bond Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 586 Million

Manager's Overview:

Major government bond markets generated positive returns (in local currency terms) over the period amid a deepening credit crisis and expectations of a global economic slowdown, particularly in the US. Initially, higher inflation and rising interest rates, a result of stronger economic growth, led government bonds to underperform investment-grade and high-yield securities. The US sub-prime crisis, however, fuelled fears of contagion into other asset classes, which triggered a flight to safety. Subsequently, government bonds outperformed corporate debt, causing credit spreads to widen sharply and high-yield bonds to fare poorly. Despite central banks' efforts to ease funding pressures, inter-bank lending rates moved up, tempering the positive effect of interest rate cuts made by policy makers in the US, the UK and Canada. Nonetheless, the European Central Bank has kept its rate on hold since June last year.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An exposure to asset-backed securities detracted after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. The quality of the holdings, however, is good, and there has been no deterioration in their fundamentals. An overweight in selected emerging-market bonds further hindered performance, as the risk appetite of investors diminished. Conversely, holdings in inflation-linked bonds contributed amid rising energy and food prices in the US, Europe and Japan.

Over the year, the manager moved the fund from an overall underweight exposure to interest rates to neutral. He maintained a short-duration US position while remaining long-duration in Europe, the UK and Japan where a deteriorating labour market and competitiveness have been the main themes. Meanwhile, he implemented a flattening trade strategy on the US yield curve, as the market reacted positively to efficient central bank actions. In the credit market, more opportunities were identified in banks where the risk premium should switch from 'liquidity type' to one that is 'bank earnings type'.

International Bond Fund II ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: SGD 67 Million

Manager's Overview:

Major government bond markets generated positive returns (in local currency terms) over the period amid a deepening credit crisis and expectations of a global economic slowdown, particularly in the US. Initially, higher inflation and rising interest rates, a result of stronger economic growth, led government bonds to underperform investment-grade and high-yield securities. The US sub-prime crisis, however, fuelled fears of contagion into other asset classes, which triggered a flight to safety. Subsequently, government bonds outperformed corporate debt, causing credit spreads to widen sharply and high-yield bonds to fare poorly. Despite central banks' efforts to ease funding pressures, inter-bank lending rates moved up, tempering the positive effect of interest rate cuts made by policy makers in the US, the UK and Canada. Nonetheless, the European Central Bank has kept its rate on hold since June last year.

The fund underperformed its benchmark over the review period. An exposure to asset-backed securities (ABS) detracted after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. The quality of the holdings, however, is good, and there has been no deterioration in their fundamentals. An overweight in emerging market bonds further hindered performance, as investors' risk appetite diminished. Conversely, holdings in inflation-linked bonds contributed amid rising energy and food prices in the US, Europe and Japan.

Over the year, the manager moved the fund from an overall underweight exposure to interest rates to neutral. He maintained a short-duration position in the US and Europe while being long-duration in the UK and Japan where a deteriorating labour market and competitiveness have been the main themes. In the credit market, more opportunities were identified in banks where the risk premium should switch from 'liquidity type' to one that is 'bank earnings type'. The manager remained overweight ABS, as the names held in the portfolio continue to generate inflows and remain of low credit risk.

Sterling Bond Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: GBP 127 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by investors' flight to quality, UK government bonds (gilts) generated positive returns over the 12-month period. Inflationary concerns and sustained economic growth had led the Bank of England (BoE) to raise its interest rate to 5.75% in two equal steps by July. The financial market turmoil, however, together with deteriorating global economic growth and more restrictive household and corporate lending in the UK, then caused the BoE to lower interest rates to 5.25% by the end of the review period. This came in spite of mounting price pressures, which remained a key concern for the bank. Although inter-bank lending rates moved up in the US, the UK and the eurozone, major central banks' co-ordinated liquidity intervention helped to dissipate some of these funding pressures. Corporate bonds and high-yield securities fared poorly, as credit spreads widened through most of the period.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An overweight in corporate bonds, particularly in asset-backed securities (ABS), detracted from returns after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. On a positive note, the fund benefited from a steepening of the UK yield curve; yields on short-dated bonds fell more than those on long-dated paper.

The widening of credit spreads created interesting investment opportunities. Accordingly, the fund manager increased the credit exposure from a defensive base. At a sector level, he retained an overweight in ABS, as the holdings currently offer attractive yields and are varied across collateral types, including residential and commercial mortgages, insurance receivables and 'whole of business' securitisations. He also added exposure to selected issues within financials, telecommunications and utilities. Furthermore, the fund has exposure to European government bonds, which should outperform gilts as the eurozone economy slows.

US Dollar Bond Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 553 Million

Manager's Overview:

US government bonds performed strongly as a result of the credit market turbulence and speculation that economic growth here might be faltering. Over the period, the Federal Reserve (Fed) lowered interest rates seven times, from 5.25% to 2%, in a bid to improve liquidity and curb rising inter-bank lending rates. In December, the Fed acted in tandem with major central banks to inject funds into the money markets in order to ease the stress. Furthermore, the Fed lowered its rate on direct loans to banks and became a lender of the last resort for Wall Street's biggest dealers in government bonds. Despite these efforts, credit spreads widened through most of the review period, as investors preferred safer assets. Consequently, corporate bonds underperformed government debt, while high-yield securities were the worst performing asset class in the US over the period.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An exposure to corporate bonds, in particular asset-backed securities (ABS), held back returns, as spreads widened amid increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil. The fund's relative performance was also hurt because of an overweight in banks. The sector continued to perform poorly as a result of financial sector write-downs and tighter bank lending standards. The losses, however, were restricted because banks finally started to trend back up at the end of the review period owing to central bank actions. On a positive note, the fund benefited from its exposure to US inflation-linked bonds due to rising energy and food prices.

Over the 12-month period, the manager moved the fund from a short-duration position to long-duration in the US in order to take advantage of the falling yields while maintaining a long-duration position in Europe where the central bank has not yet reduced its key rate. Towards the end of the period, the manager put in place a yield curve flattener in the US, as the market reacted positively to Fed actions. In the credit market, he focused on underpriced banks and ABS with strong fundamentals and low credit risk.

US High Yield Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 897 Million

Manager's Overview:

Over the first two months of the period, the market continued to be aided by a low default rate, solid earnings, stable long-term interest rates, improved balance sheets, and an increase in mergers and acquisitions (M&A) and leveraged buyout activity. In the second half of 2007 and into the first quarter of this year, however, the market experienced weakness due to concerns that the leveraged buyout and M&A trend was not sustainable. Deteriorating fundamentals exacerbated the situation. Nonetheless, towards the close of the period, improved investor sentiment, better-than-anticipated economic data and the Federal Reserve's decision to lower interest rates and support the sale of Bear Stearns prompted an overall recovery.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An overweight position in the lower-rated CCC sector hurt returns, as the performance of these more speculative bonds was weak through most of the period. Security selection in the air transportation, food beverage & tobacco and technology sectors also detracted, while underweight positions in the publishing/printing, gaming and paper industries bolstered fund performance. Selected issues in the energy and shipping sectors further aided returns due to improved industry fundamentals and robust commodity demand.

The exposure to the energy, electric utilities and health care sectors was increased over the period due to their attractive relative valuations and strong demand. Holdings in the telecommunications and services sectors were reduced. The largest overweight positions within the portfolio are in the technology, health care and shipping sectors, while the largest underweights are in the gaming and homebuilding/real estate industries.

Euro Cash Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 709 Million

Manager's Overview:

During the review period, the European Central Bank (ECB) raised interest rates in June to 4% due to robust money supply growth and rising inflation. Thereafter, amid persistent market turbulence and deteriorating global economic growth, the ECB kept rates on hold. This came in spite of mounting price pressures, fuelled by higher energy and food costs towards the latter part of the review period. Economic growth in the region was driven by strong investment and export growth. Although inter-bank lending rates moved up in the US, the UK and the eurozone, major central banks' co-ordinated liquidity intervention helped to dissipate some of these funding pressures.

Even as the ECB kept its interest rates unchanged after June, there were growing expectations that the bank would follow in the footsteps of the Federal Reserve and the Bank of England and reduce its benchmark rate. These expectations persisted despite inflation staying above the ECB's target on the belief that a slowing economy would demand a rate reduction. Accordingly, the fund manager actively managed the fund's duration exposure over the 12-month period.

Looking ahead, eurozone interest rates are widely expected to be lowered over the year, which gives credence to the portfolio manager's long-maturity position. This reflects the region's decelerating economy as the effects of a more restrictive credit environment, relatively high oil prices and an appreciating euro begin to feed through to the real economy. In March, the ECB revised down its GDP forecast to 1.7% in 2008 and to 1.8% in 2009 and also stated that it expects inflation to average 2.9% this year. Moreover, money supply growth has been declining since November and the growth rate is now the same as it was at the start of the year.

Manager's Overview:

Over the review period, the Federal Reserve (Fed) lowered interest rates seven times, from 5.25% to 2%, in a bid to improve liquidity and curb rising inter-bank lending rates. In December, the Fed acted in tandem with major central banks to inject funds into the money markets in order to ease the stress. Furthermore, the Fed lowered its rate on direct loans to banks and became a lender of the last resort for Wall Street's biggest dealers in government bonds. On the macroeconomic front, headline inflation rose significantly over the period due to surging energy and food prices. The economy grew at an annual pace of 0.6% in the first quarter of 2008 amid an increase in inventories.

The manager actively managed the fund's duration exposure over the period. For instance, early in the period, he believed that the Fed would keep its interest rates on hold. Later, he shifted to a long-duration stance given his view that interest rates would be lowered in light of a housing market downturn.

Looking ahead, there are indications that the Fed has reached the end of its rate-cut cycle for the time being. The liquidity measures provided by the bank have triggered an improvement in investor sentiment, which was reflected in the recent buoyancy in the financial markets. A continuing decline in housing markets, a rise in unemployment, a fall in corporate investment and deteriorating consumer confidence, however, clearly indicate that the slowdown in economic activity will be protracted.

MoneyBuilder Asia Fund ^{1,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 11 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, Asia Pacific equities outperformed their global counterparts over the last 12 months. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility during the second half of the review period amid concerns that a US slowdown would impact regional exports. This, together with a global credit crisis, resulted in negative returns in Japanese markets over the period. Meanwhile, Chinese stocks proved to be the best performers, as the economy continued to see low double-digit expansion. Improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections aided the performance of Thai equities, while upbeat corporate profit growth buoyed Indian markets.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period due mainly to positions in the Greater China region. The exposure of the underlying holdings to the energy sector benefited from a rise in coal and oil prices and strong demand for off-shore oil services. Holdings in Taiwanese equities also helped amid expectations that the country's economic environment would improve after the pro-China KMT party won the presidential elections in March. Positions in Japan also proved beneficial. Conversely, an off-benchmark exposure to the property sector hurt returns in light of its relative underperformance over the period.

At the end of the review period, the manager was overweight Japanese equities, although she had been underweight initially. In turn, the overweight in Pacific Basin ex-Japan equities was reduced to an underweight over the period. Persistent concerns about a US-led global slowdown encouraged the manager to take a more defensive stance by raising positions in developed markets at the expense of the more volatile Emerging Markets.

MoneyBuilder European Bond Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 4 Million

Manager's Overview:

Benefiting from a flight to safety as investors shunned risky assets, European government bond markets generated positive returns over the review period. During this period, the European Central Bank increased interest rates once, in June, and thereafter kept them on hold. The last 12 months were characterised by a rise in headline inflation, driven by surging commodity prices, tight credit conditions resulting from the financial market turmoil, an unwinding of structured transactions and forced selling by leveraged investors such as hedge funds. These headwinds dampened sentiment, and investors became increasingly averse to risk. Subsequently, government debt outperformed investment-grade corporate bonds. High-yield securities also fared poorly, as credit spreads widened through most of the period.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. In the Euro Bond Fund, an overweight in corporate bonds detracted amid a considerable widening of credit spreads. The credit crunch caused significant asset deterioration in some areas of the asset-backed securities (ABS) and financials sectors, which dampened sentiment. In contrast, the European High Yield Fund outperformed its benchmark due largely to positive asset allocation and stock selection.

In the Euro Bond Fund, although underweight government bonds, the manager steadily increased exposure to this asset class in light of the deepening credit crisis. Within credit, the fund was overweight financials by the end of the period and had an above-benchmark exposure to Lower Tier 2 issues given their attractive valuation. The manager also retained an overweight in Eastern European emerging markets and in ABS. In the European High Yield Fund, he increased credit risk levels over the period, albeit from a defensive base. Overall, the fund is highly diversified across sectors and remains focused on companies with limited re-financing needs, an improving credit profile and a short- to medium-term payment horizon.

MoneyBuilder Europe Fund 1,4,5

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 17 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to balance sluggish growth against rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its key rate three times after increasing it initially. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators in the region continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund marginally outperformed its benchmark over the review period. An overweight in metals & mining firms aided returns on account of rising metal prices. A key contributor was a position in MMC Norilsk Nickel, a leading producer of nickel, whose shares gained from high commodity prices, driven by limited global supply and strong demand from emerging economies such as China. An underweight in diversified financials and banks was also beneficial amid persistent concerns about the fallout of the credit crisis. Conversely, holdings in the transportation sector, specifically Ryanair, proved unfavourable due to fears that higher fuel prices would cut into the airline's earnings growth. The manager, however, believes that ancillary revenues, such as credit card fees and charges on excess baggage, will largely offset these additional costs.

She retains the strategy of investing in the portfolios of underlying managers who follow different investment styles vis-à-vis stock selection. At end-April, the highest exposure relative to the benchmark was to the metals & mining sector, which is expected to benefit from strong emerging-market growth. The underweight exposure to commercial banks was maintained, as a deteriorating economy cast doubts on their earnings prospects.

MoneyBuilder Global Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 21 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, markets in the Pacific ex-Japan region, Europe, the UK, the US and Japan retreated in euro terms.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period, driven by favourable asset allocation. In particular, a large off-benchmark exposure to Emerging Markets, which outperformed other bourses, buoyed returns. Underweight positions in the UK, Japan and the US also contributed. Conversely, the portfolio's below-benchmark holdings in the Pacific ex-Japan region detracted from performance, while an overweight in the technology sector hurt returns of both the UK holdings. Share prices of UK firms declined due to their weak earnings outlook. Stock selection in Europe, Japan and the Pacific ex-Japan region, however, was beneficial.

The manager scaled back the overweight exposure to Europe, as the region is most at risk of an economic slowdown after the US. The US holding, on the other hand, was increased, as it is a defensive market that tends to perform strongly during periods of stock market weakness. The Federal Reserve's proactive stance in cutting interest rates and taking additional steps to improve liquidity could also prompt a quicker recovery. Meanwhile, positions in Japan were pared in view of deteriorating macro fundamentals. Elsewhere, the manager retained the bias towards the Pacific ex-Japan region and enhanced exposure to Emerging Markets, as their outlook remains positive.

Fidelity Target™ 2010 Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 25 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses over the 12-month period was mixed. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose and the value of complex mortgage-related debt instruments declined, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses. The Federal Reserve cut lending rates aggressively and took additional steps in concert with other central banks to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Towards the end of the period, markets staged a partial recovery due to speculation that the crisis could be nearing its end. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, and to a lesser extent in Pacific ex-Japan, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated. Meanwhile, all major government bond markets generated positive returns (in local currency terms).

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Stock selection hurt performance, particularly in the North American fixed income segment. An exposure to corporate bonds, particularly to asset-backed securities (ABS), detracted, as spreads widened amid increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil. An exposure to Japanese equities also hurt returns because tighter conditions in global capital markets and a decline in condominium sales weighed upon real estate stocks. Conversely, US and European holdings boosted performance. In terms of asset allocation, a bias towards Pacific ex-Japan equities and an underweight in the US proved beneficial.

Over the period, the manager maintained an overweight in European equities, which were buoyed by bid speculation and relatively healthy earnings, while she scaled back positions in Japan where macroeconomic fundamentals are continuing to deteriorate. In the US, where the housing market is still on the decline, she maintained an underweight. Elsewhere, she retained the bias towards Pacific ex-Japan, as the outlook here remains positive.

Fidelity Target™ 2020 Fund

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses over the 12-month period was mixed. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose and the value of complex mortgage-related debt instruments declined, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide to other financial institutions. Towards the end of the period, markets staged a partial recovery due to speculation that the crisis could be nearing its end. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, and to a lesser extent in Pacific ex-Japan, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

The fund marginally outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Stock selection in Europe contributed, owing to an overweight in the materials sector, where earnings were driven by sustained demand and a strong trend in commodity prices. Holdings in North American equities, benefiting from an exposure to technology hardware and equipment companies such as Apple, also contributed. In addition to revamping its existing product lines, Apple launched the iPhone, which generated strong sales for the company. In the portfolio's Asia Pacific portion, a holding in Australia benefited from a position in miner Rio Tinto.

Over the period, the manager retained an underweight in US equities due to concerns about a slowdown in the region brought about by reduced credit availability and a housing market downturn. She remained underweight Japan, as macroeconomic fundamentals here continued to deteriorate. Meanwhile, she retained an overweight exposure to Continental Europe, which should benefit from bid speculation and healthy earnings. An overweight in the Asia Pacific ex-Japan region was also maintained.

Fidelity Target™ 2010 (Euro) Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 101 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, markets in the Pacific ex-Japan region, Europe, the UK, the US and Japan retreated in euro terms. European government bonds generated positive returns as investors stayed away from risky assets. Investment-grade and high-yield bonds fared poorly as credit spreads widened.

The fund underperformed its benchmark over the review period. The performance of the fixed income segment, which comprises over half of the portfolio, was hurt by an exposure to asset-backed securities after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. The holdings, however, are of good quality and there has been no material deterioration in their fundamentals. Meanwhile, among the US equity holdings, positions in retail firms, whose earnings were hurt by weakening consumer confidence, detracted from returns. Conversely, asset allocation proved beneficial. An overweight in cash at the expense of equities added value. Equities underperformed, as investors sought relatively safe assets amid the financial market turbulence.

The portfolio follows a dynamic asset allocation model, which is set to have an increasing exposure to bonds and cash and a decreasing weighting in equities as the target date approaches. At the end of the period, the portfolio was overweight cash, neutral bonds and underweight equities given that global economic growth is expected to slow.

Fidelity Target™ 2015 (Euro) Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 124 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over the review period, which was marked by a credit crunch, the result of high default rates in the US sub-prime market. Concerns about the impact of the crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, other major markets retreated in euro terms. European government bonds generated positive returns, benefiting from investors' shunning risky assets. Investment-grade and high-yield bonds fared poorly, as credit spreads widened.

The fund marginally outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Asset allocation was particularly beneficial. An overweight in bonds and cash at the expense of equities added value. Equities underperformed, as investors sought relatively safe assets amid the financial market turmoil. This was partially undermined by the performance of the bond portion, which comprises almost 40% of the portfolio. An exposure to asset-backed securities detracted after downgrades from rating agencies and concerns about the scale of possible losses led to a widening of spreads. The holdings, however, are of good quality and there has been no material deterioration in their fundamentals. Elsewhere, an exposure to shipping-related stocks buoyed the returns of the Pacific ex-Japan segment due to rising freight rates and a strong trend in vessel prices.

The portfolio follows a dynamic asset allocation model, which is set to have an increasing exposure to bonds and cash and a decreasing weighting in equities as the target date approaches. At the end of the period, the portfolio was overweight bonds and cash and underweight equities given that global growth is expected to slow. Within the equity allocation, the manager favoured European markets, where increased domestic orders and external demand from the fast-growing Emerging Markets should mitigate the impact of a US slowdown.

Fidelity Target™ 2020 (Euro) Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 90 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over the review period, which was marked by a credit crunch, the result of high default rates in the US sub-prime market. Concerns about the impact of the crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, other major markets retreated in euro terms. European government bonds generated positive returns, benefiting from investors' shunning risky assets. Investment-grade and high-yield bonds fared poorly, as credit spreads widened.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Asset allocation proved particularly beneficial. An overweight in bonds and cash at the expense of equities added value. Equities underperformed, as investors sought relatively safe assets amid the financial market turmoil. This was partially undermined by the performance of the bond segment. Here, exposure to asset-backed securities hurt returns after downgrades from rating agencies and concerns about the scale of possible losses led to a widening of spreads. The holdings, however, are of good quality and there has been no material deterioration in their fundamentals. Elsewhere, an exposure to shipping-related stocks buoyed the returns of the Pacific ex-Japan portion due to rising freight rates and a strong trend in vessel prices.

The portfolio follows a dynamic asset allocation model, which is set to have an increasing exposure to bonds and cash and a decreasing weighting in equities as the target date approaches. At the end of the period, the portfolio was overweight bonds and cash and underweight equities given that global economic growth is expected to slow. Within the equity allocation, the manager favoured European markets, where increased domestic orders and external demand from the fast-growing Emerging Markets should mitigate the impact of a US slowdown.

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. The performance of the fixed income portion was hurt by an exposure to asset-backed securities, after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. The holdings, however, are of good quality and there has been no material deterioration in their fundamentals. Meanwhile in the US segment, positions in retail firms, whose earnings were hurt by weakening consumer confidence, detracted. In contrast, an exposure to shipping-related stocks buoyed the returns of the Pacific ex-Japan holdings amid rising freight rates and a strong trend in vessel prices. Elsewhere, asset allocation proved beneficial. An overweight in cash and bonds at the expense of equities added value. Live 2020 Fund 1,4,5

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: SGD 4 Million

Manager's Overview:

Global equity markets rose in the latter half of April, as investor sentiment was buoyed by better-than-expected earnings reports from a number of non-financial companies. Moreover, write-downs by leading financial institutions raised hopes that banks were aggressively cleaning up their books and that the credit market crisis had done its worst. Meanwhile, a sharp rise in the price of oil and food aided the returns of commodity producers. Against this backdrop, the export-focussed Japanese market saw the steepest rise, as a fall in the value of the yen against the US dollar boosted the share prices of exporters. This was followed by bourses in the Pacific ex-Japan region and in Emerging Markets, both of which gained from the uptrend in commodity prices. The US, the UK and European markets also advanced over the review period.

The Live 2020 Fund aims to provide a retirement solution to investors. It will typically invest in a wide range of asset classes covering markets across the world and providing exposure to bonds, equities, commodities and cash. It is designed to maximise the total investment return by changing the allocation to different assets over time, whereby the percentage weighting in each asset class will vary as the target date approaches. It will move increasingly towards an asset allocation appropriate to achieving a combination of income and long-term capital growth as the year 2020 approaches.

FAWF America Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 90 Million

Manager's Overview:

US equities fell over a period marked by a credit-market crisis and liquidity constraints. Financials declined considerably, as leading firms reported write-downs against their exposure to mortgage-backed securities, whose value fell amid increasing defaults in the sub-prime market. Other sectors were also impacted, and a slowdown in consumer and business spending generated recessionary fears. Consumer discretionary stocks were also sold off, as rising fuel costs and higher food prices put more pressure on household budgets and the economy created fewer new jobs. Against this uncertain backdrop, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates aggressively to boost GDP growth and took other unprecedented measures to inject liquidity into, and restore confidence in, the financial system.

The fund ended the review period in negative territory. Retailers hindered returns due to concerns that consumer spending would slow down sharply. After taking a hit to profits, Sears detracted, as did an exposure to convenience store operator The Pantry, which forecast a second-quarter loss, as rising oil prices cut into its margins on fuel sales. Both these positions were closed during the year. Holdings in Citigroup and AIG came under pressure because their profits were depressed by write-downs against investments in asset-backed securities. The manager, however, has retained these stocks, since he believes the credit concerns surrounding AIG were overstated. Meanwhile, materials firms contributed on the strength of commodity prices. Monsanto, for instance, was bolstered by rising demand for food and ethanol, which in turn pushed up demand for its genetically modified seeds. Natural gas producers, such as EOG and Range Resources, added value due to better growth forecasts and rising output prices.

Adrian Brass took over the fund's management in January 2008. He significantly boosted the holdings in diversified financials, taking advantage of attractive valuations in selected cases such as trust banks and stock exchange firms, and increased exposure to metals & mining stocks given strong commodity prices and healthy demand.

FAWF American Diversified Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 5 Million

Manager's Overview:

US equities declined over a period marked by a credit market crisis and liquidity constraints. Financials fell considerably, as leading firms reported write-downs against their exposure to mortgage-backed securities, whose value fell amid increasing defaults in the sub-prime market. Other sectors were also impacted, and a slowdown in consumer and business spending generated recessionary fears. Consumer discretionary stocks were also sold off, as rising fuel and food prices put more pressure on household budgets and the economy created fewer new jobs. Against this uncertain backdrop, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates aggressively to boost GDP growth and took other unprecedented measures to inject liquidity into, and restore confidence in, the financial system.

The fund's performance slipped into negative territory over the review period. At a stock level, pharmaceutical firm Theravance held back returns after the US Food and Drug Administration found some data issues related to the late-stage trial of a key drug. This holding was disposed of. An exposure to mortgage lenders Fannie Mae and Countrywide Financial also hurt performance, as these firms recorded substantial losses due to the severity of the slump in the US housing market. Conversely, holdings in technology hardware firms, particularly Apple, made a notable contribution. In addition to revamping its existing product lines, Apple launched the immensely successful iPhone. A position in Southwestern Energy added value. This natural gas producer increased production amid strong prices and bolstered its profits.

At end-April 2008, positions in technology firms were increased by boosting the existing holdings in hardware firms and adding a new position in Nuance Communications, which has a dominant market share in voice recognition software. Among capital goods firms, AGCO represented the largest position. Rising demand and constrained supply have seen the prices of soft commodities soar, benefiting the agricultural sector in general and this agricultural equipment manufacturer in particular. Holdings in financial firms were reduced over the year.

FAWF American Growth Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 114 Million

Manager's Overview:

US equities fell over a period marked by a credit crisis and liquidity constraints. Financials declined considerably, as leading firms reported write-downs against their exposure to mortgage-backed securities, whose value fell amid increasing defaults in the sub-prime market. Other sectors were also impacted, and a slowdown in consumer and business spending generated recessionary fears. Consumer discretionary stocks were also sold off, as rising fuel costs and higher food prices put more pressure on household budgets and the economy created fewer new jobs. Against this uncertain backdrop, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates aggressively to boost GDP growth and took other unprecedented measures to inject liquidity into the financial system.

Over the review period, fund returns were in negative territory. A position in Avnet proved unrewarding, as semiconductor demand weakened towards the end of the period. The stock's valuation, however, reflects this and its shares could rise once demand recovers. Elsewhere, a persistent rise in crude prices hurt refiner Tesoro and created cash-management issues. The holding was subsequently sold. Meanwhile, an exposure to Annaly Capital Management detracted, as investors remained wary of firms dependent on short-term borrowings. Its long-term prospects are, however, intact given that it invests in mortgage-backed securities issued by government-sponsored enterprises and offers a significant dividend yield. In contrast, holdings in stocks, such as Terra, AGCO, Mosaic and Deere, that are exposed to buoyant agricultural markets contributed.

The manager believes that the long-term outlook for the energy sector remains robust given supply constraints, although he has switched out of most oil-related names and into natural gas. Meanwhile, he closed the position in health care stock Humana, which cut its earnings guidance and, along with other health management organisations, has to grapple with some political uncertainty relating to the presidential elections.

FAWF Asian Special Situations Fund 1,4,5

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 180 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, Asia Pacific equities ended the period higher, outperforming their global developed counterparts. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility amid concerns that a US slowdown would impact regional exports. Underpinned by strong economic growth, Chinese stocks proved to be the best performers, while improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections aided the returns of Thai equities. Meanwhile, Indian markets were buoyed by strong corporate profits. At a sector level, energy and materials firms benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, whereas a global credit crisis that reduced capital availability tempered the returns of banking stocks.

The fund performed strongly over the review period, owing largely to holdings in the financial sector. Commercial banks benefited from healthy growth in consumer loans in the region. Of note, China Merchant Bank contributed significantly, as it enjoys the first-mover advantage in consumer banking and is the market leader in credit cards in the mainland. Chinese insurance names profited from growth in premiums, while robust subscription growth bolstered shares in mobile phone operators. Within materials, chemicals and mining stocks were beneficiaries of an uptrend in commodity prices, while energy companies gained from higher oil and coal prices. Conversely, positions in technology hardware exporters detracted, as did holdings in pharmaceuticals and utilities.

The fund manager realigned the exposure to commercial banks to favour Taiwanese names in view of the better opportunities that could arise if restrictions on investing in China were to ease as expected. He also increased the allocation to utilities, mainly by adding electric utilities in Hong Kong, which are well positioned to profit from potential overseas growth and have strong cash flows. Selected mining companies were added amid expectations of a rise in metal prices. Meanwhile, holdings in industrials were reduced given a moderating outlook.

FAWF Europe Fund 1,4,5

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 132 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators in the region continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund generated negative returns over the review period. A holding in Ryanair detracted, as investors focused on the impact of higher fuel costs on the airline's profits. The manager, however, believes that ancillary revenues, such as credit card fees and charges on excess baggage, will largely offset these additional costs. Meanwhile, the position in Banco Popolare was hurt by the firm's disappointing results and concerns about its stake in Banca Italease. Nevertheless, the value of this stake has already been written down significantly and investors should focus on Banco Popolare's attractive franchise and long-term merger synergies. On a positive note, an exposure to luxury car manufacturer Porsche, which was driven by encouraging sales and speculation that it might raise its stake in Volkswagen, proved rewarding.

The manager remains cautious about materials, as he believes that the uptrend in the more cyclical metals & mining and chemicals sectors is not sustainable. Although he is concerned about financials overall, he has added to companies, such as AXA in the insurance sector, that have a robust earnings outlook. He continues to favour selected companies in the media and automobiles sectors, for example, Reed Elsevier and Porsche.

FAWF International Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 88 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

The fund generated positive returns over the review period. Holdings in the Pacific ex-Japan region and Emerging Markets proved the most beneficial to performance. In the former, holdings in shipping-related stocks, which were buoyed by rising freight rates and strong vessel prices, buoyed returns. The latter gained from holdings in real estate companies and in chemicals firms catering to the buoyant agricultural commodities market. Meanwhile, holdings in coal and fertiliser companies boosted the returns of holdings in Emerging Markets. Conversely in the US segment, positions in retail stocks detracted, as consumer confidence weakened.

The manager believes that increased domestic orders and external demand from the fast-growing Emerging Markets should mitigate the impact of a US slowdown on European equities. He also maintains a negative stance towards the US, where the housing market and consumer sentiment are still deteriorating. Meanwhile, macroeconomic fundamentals are continuing to worsen in Japan, while the outlook for the Pacific ex-Japan region and Emerging Markets remains positive.

FAWF Japan Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 8 Million

Manager's Overview:

The Japanese market trended downwards for much of the period, hitting a multi-year low in mid-March 2008. Factors such as sluggish domestic demand, a stronger yen and a dependence on inflows from overseas investors kept a lid on share prices. While easing credit concerns and a reversal in yen appreciation fuelled a late rally, Japan remained a relative laggard among developed markets. Over the period, domestic sectors suffered the steepest declines. Government policies aimed at improving regulation inadvertently stifled activity in the construction and consumer finance industries. In contrast, upstream sectors performed well.

Over the review period, the fund's absolute return was disappointing. While stock selection was rewarding among technology- and commodity-related large caps that reported solid earnings, holdings in real estate developers and machinery makers detracted from performance. The top contributor was video game developer Nintendo. Its handheld device and innovative software remained immensely popular, while its next-generation console, the Wii, outsold its competitors. Japan's leading trading company, Mitsui, also added significant value. Its metals and energy businesses benefited from buoyant global demand and rising oil and metal prices. In contrast, the top detractors included condominium developers Haseko and Leopalace21. New building regulations delayed the booking of sales, and the rising cost of raw materials threatened their profit margins.

In what was an increasingly uncertain environment, the manager focused on large-cap blue chip companies that he believes have sound management, healthy balance sheets and the ability to generate strong free cash flows. He maintained positions in internationally competitive companies among manufacturers of automobiles, office equipment, industrial machinery and electronics components. He sold selected holdings whose valuations looked stretched as a result of strong performance over the year. Instead, he added to positions in banks and in semiconductor equipment makers that had been sold down to extremely attractive valuations.

FAWF Pacific Fund 1,4,5

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 115 Million

Manager's Overview:

In the first half of the review period, the Asia Pacific region posted strong returns, but gave up a large part of the gains in the second half amid global market turbulence. Investor sentiment deteriorated rapidly due to concerns about a slowdown in demand from the US, inflationary pressures and any potential fallout of the global credit market crisis on the Asia Pacific financial sector. China was the best performing market, while Japanese stocks remained the laggard in the region. At a sector level, rising oil and commodity prices fuelled the strong performance of energy and materials firms, while the global credit crisis tempered the returns of banking stocks.

The largest contributor to the fund's returns was Incitec Pivot. This Australian fertiliser manufacturer is a key beneficiary of the soft commodity boom in the country. Its share price almost tripled in the past year, as record fertiliser prices helped drive the company's earnings to their highest ever level. Educomp Solutions, India's largest provider of technology-driven education solutions, was another major contributor. A significant increase in the number of schools adopting its education programmes drove the stock's performance. On the other hand, several small- and mid-cap holdings relinquished their earlier gains amid a general pull-back in the markets.

Although the portfolio is built with a bottom-up stock-picking approach, the net effect of these stock decisions is a significant underweight in Japan. Over the period, the manager further trimmed the fund's exposure to Japanese automakers and other companies that depend on the US for a major portion of their sales. Elsewhere, key stock selection themes that had proved rewarding over the past few years remained valid. The manager continued to favour infrastructure plays, beneficiaries of strong trends in both hard and soft commodities – especially service providers – and companies positioned to benefit from the general growth in consumer spending and the rise of the middle class in China, India and other emerging countries in Asia.

FAWF US Large-Cap Stock Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 62 Million

Manager's Overview:

US equities declined over a period marked by a credit market crisis and liquidity constraints. Financials fell considerably, as leading firms reported write-downs against their exposure to mortgage-backed securities, whose value fell amid increasing defaults in the sub-prime market. Other sectors were also impacted, and a slowdown in consumer and business spending generated recessionary fears. Consumer discretionary stocks were also sold off, as rising fuel costs and higher food prices put more pressure on household budgets and the economy created fewer new jobs. Against this uncertain backdrop, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates aggressively to boost GDP growth and took other unprecedented measures to inject liquidity into, and restore confidence in, the financial system.

The fund ended the review period in negative territory. Retailers hindered returns due to concerns that consumer spending would slow down sharply. After taking a hit to profits, Sears detracted, as did an exposure to convenience store operator The Pantry, which forecast a second-quarter loss because rising oil prices cut into its margins on fuel sales. Both these positions were closed during the year. Holdings in Citigroup and AIG came under pressure, as their profits were depressed by write-downs against investments in asset-backed securities. The manager, however, has retained these stocks, since he believes the credit concerns surrounding AIG were overstated. Meanwhile, materials firms contributed on the strength of commodity prices. Monsanto, for instance, was boosted by rising demand for food and ethanol, which in turn pushed up demand for its genetically modified seeds. Natural gas producers such as EOG and Range Resources added value due to better growth forecasts and rising output prices.

Adrian Brass took over the fund's management in January 2008. He significantly increased the holdings in diversified financials, taking advantage of attractive valuations in selected cases such as trust banks and stock exchange firms. Exposure to metals & mining stocks was also boosted given strong commodity prices and healthy demand.

FAWF US Dollar Bond Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 12 Million

Manager's Overview:

US government bonds performed strongly as a result of the credit market turbulence and speculation that economic growth might be faltering. Over the period, the Federal Reserve (Fed) lowered interest rates seven times, from 5.25% to 2%, in a bid to improve liquidity and curb rising inter-bank lending rates. In December, the Fed acted in tandem with major central banks to inject funds into the money markets in order to ease the stress. Furthermore, the Fed lowered its rate on direct loans to banks and became a lender of the last resort for Wall Street's biggest dealers in government bonds. Despite these efforts, credit spreads widened through most of the review period, as investors preferred safer assets. Consequently, corporate bonds underperformed government debt, while high-yield securities were the worst performing asset class in the US over the period.

The fund's performance remained subdued over the review period. Exposure to corporate bonds, in particular asset-backed securities (ABS), held back returns, as spreads widened amid increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil. Holdings in banks also reined in the fund's performance. The sector continued to perform poorly as a result of financial sector write-downs and tighter bank lending standards. The losses, however, were limited, as banks finally started to trend back up at the end of the review period as a result of action taken by central banks. On a positive note, the fund benefited from its exposure to US inflation-linked bonds due to rising energy and food prices.

Over the 12-month period, the manager moved the fund from a short-duration position to long-duration in the US to take advantage of the falling yields while maintaining a long-duration position in Europe, where the central bank has not yet reduced its key rate. Towards the end of the period, he put in place a yield curve flattener in the US, as the market reacted positively to measures taken by the Fed. In the credit market, he focused on underpriced banks and ABS with strong fundamentals and low credit risk.

FAWF US High Income Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 79 Million

Manager's Overview:

Over the first two months of the period, the market continued to be aided by a low default rate, solid earnings, stable long-term interest rates, improved balance sheets and an increase in mergers and acquisitions (M&A) and leveraged buyout activity. In the second half of 2007 and into the first quarter of this year, however, markets experienced weakness due to concerns about whether the leveraged buyout and M&A trend was sustainable. Deteriorating fundamentals exacerbated the situation. Nonetheless, towards the close of the period, improved investor sentiment, better-than-anticipated economic data and the Federal Reserve's decision to lower interest rates and support the sale of Bear Stearns prompted an overall recovery.

The fund's performance remained subdued over the 12-month review period. An exposure to the lower-rated CCC sector hurt returns, as the performance of these more speculative bonds was weak through most of the period. Security selection in the air transportation, food beverage & tobacco and technology sectors also detracted, while in the publishing/printing, gaming and paper industries it bolstered fund performance. Selected securities in the energy and shipping sectors further aided returns, as they benefited from improved industry fundamentals and robust commodity demand.

The exposure to some issues in the energy, electric utilities and health care sectors was increased over the period due to their attractive relative valuations and strong demand. Elsewhere, holdings in the telecommunications and services sectors were reduced.

FAWF Global Balanced Fund ^{1,4,5}

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 25 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

The fund generated positive returns over the review period, aided largely by a large exposure to government bonds, the best performing fixed income asset class over the period. An exposure to asset-backed securities proved detrimental after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. The quality of these holdings, however, is good and there has been no material deterioration in their fundamentals. Moreover, holdings in real estate companies and in chemicals firms catering to the buoyant agricultural commodities market boosted the performance of holdings in Emerging Markets. Positions in industrials stocks also generated strong returns, as energy and mining companies benefited from rising commodity prices.

The manager preferred bonds to equities given that the global economy is expected to decelerate. Meanwhile, he was more optimistic about the growth prospects of the Pacific ex-Japan region and Emerging Markets than he was about developed markets.

Institutional America Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 227 Million

Manager's Overview:

US equities fell over a period marked by a credit market crisis and liquidity constraints. At a sector level, financials declined markedly, as leading firms reported write-downs against their exposure to mortgage-backed securities, whose value fell amid increasing defaults in the sub-prime market. Other sectors were also impacted, and a slowdown in consumer and business spending generated recessionary fears. Consumer discretionary stocks were also sold off, as rising fuel costs and higher food prices put more pressure on household budgets and the economy created fewer new jobs. Against this uncertain backdrop, the Federal Reserve cut interest rates aggressively to boost GDP growth and took other unprecedented measures to inject liquidity into, and restore confidence in, the financial system.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period. Holdings in technology hardware firms, particularly Apple, were the biggest contributor. In addition to revamping its existing product lines, Apple launched the immensely successful, revenue-generating iPhone. An underweight in leading investment banks impacted by the credit crunch aided stock selection in diversified financials. Elsewhere, an exposure to natural gas producer Southwestern Energy underpinned returns, as an increase in production and strong prices boosted its profits. Meanwhile, rising oil prices supported the order books of energy equipment & services companies Transocean and National Oilwell. An underweight in integrated oil majors, including Chevron and Exxon Mobil, however, hindered the overall returns from the energy sector. At a stock level, pharmaceutical firm Theravance detracted due to regulatory setbacks.

At end-April 2008, AGCO represented the fund's biggest active position. Rising demand and constrained supply have seen soft commodity prices soar, benefiting the agricultural sector in general and this agricultural equipment manufacturer in particular. Holdings in software firms were increased to overweight, primarily by adding a new position in Nuance Communications, which has a dominant market share in voice recognition software.

Institutional Asia Pacific (ex-Japan) Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 48 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, Asia Pacific equities ended the period higher, outperforming their global developed counterparts. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility amid concerns that a US slowdown would impact regional exports. Underpinned by strong economic growth, Chinese stocks proved to be the best performers, while improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections aided the returns of Thai equities. Meanwhile, Indian markets were buoyed by strong corporate profits. At a sector level, energy and materials firms benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, whereas a global credit crisis that reduced capital availability tempered the returns of banking stocks.

The fund generated positive returns but underperformed its benchmark, due largely to stock selection in the industrials sector. A holding in Nine Dragons Papers, a leading Chinese containerboard manufacturer, was among the top detractors. The company's profit margins were hurt by increased raw material costs. Key positions in the industrials sector, including shipbuilders, proved detrimental due to the rise in steel prices and labour costs. While holdings in the energy sector contributed, a lack of exposure to CNOOC hindered returns. The manager, however, remains underweight this stock, as valuations have become high. On a positive note, prudent stock selection in the real estate and diversified financials sectors proved rewarding.

Given that economic growth in the US remains uncertain, the manager is cautious about companies with exposure to this market or to Europe. For instance, he is underweight technology firms, as they are seeing softer demand and smaller profit margins due to a weaker US dollar and higher labour costs. He prefers to focus on long-term industry winners as well as on companies seen to benefit from domestic consumption. He is also looking closely for opportunities in countries that have fared poorly in recent years and where sentiment is now improving.

Institutional Asia Pacific (ex-Japan) Opportunities Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 39 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, Asia Pacific equities outperformed their global counterparts over the last 12 months. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility during the second half of the review period amid concerns that a slowdown in the US would impact regional exports. Chinese stocks proved to be the best performers, as the economy continued to see low double-digit growth. Improving macro fundamentals and political stability induced by the presidential elections aided the performance of Thai equities, while upbeat corporate profits buoyed Indian markets. At a sector level, energy and materials stocks benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, whereas a global credit crisis that reduced capital availability tempered the returns of banking stocks.

Since its inception in September 2007, the fund has outperformed its benchmark, the stock-market volatility notwithstanding. An overweight in the energy sector contributed, particularly Indonesian coal miner Bumi Resources, whose share price was bolstered by favourable demand/supply conditions as well as increasing coal prices. Prudent stock selection in the materials sector also proved rewarding. For instance, shares in Australia-based fertiliser manufacturer Incitec Pivot supported returns, as a boom in the agricultural sector, driven by increasing demand for food, feed, biofuel and fibre, lifted its stock price. Meanwhile, an exposure to the capital goods sector detracted due to rising steel prices and labour costs.

The manager bought holdings in companies that have attractive valuations and minimal earnings risk given that cost pressures are expected to intensify. In particular, he raised the fund's exposure to the energy sector in view of sustained demand from industrialising nations and higher global oil prices. The allocation to the more-defensive consumer staples and telecommunications sectors was also increased. Meanwhile, the manager reduced holdings in financials in view of high valuations and a deteriorating earnings outlook.

Institutional Emerging Markets Equity Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 138 Million

Manager's Overview:

Equities in Emerging Markets generated robust returns in a period marked by a global credit crisis and concerns about a US recession. Domestic consumption and regional exports in the developing world sustained a healthy pace of economic expansion amid slowing US demand. Meanwhile, inflationary pressures intensified across most emerging countries due primarily to rising food and oil prices. Consequently, many central banks responded with appropriate measures, including interest rate increases, to keep consumer prices in check. At a regional level, Latin American stocks were the best performers, where Brazilian equities recorded substantial gains on account of strong internal consumption and rising commodity prices.

The fund delivered robust absolute returns, but underperformed its benchmark over the review period. Russia's Sberbank was the biggest detractor, falling out of favour when its third-quarter profits failed to meet forecasts, despite healthy lending growth. Meanwhile, stock selection in diversified financials also proved unrewarding. In particular, South African lenders were sold off in view of rising domestic interest rates and lower loan demand, and higher fuel and food costs made it difficult to service existing loans. These holdings were reduced over the year. Conversely, exposure to coal producers Bumi Resources and China Coal added value, as robust Chinese demand supported coal prices. Elsewhere, fertiliser producers Israel Chemicals and Uralkali contributed. Rising nutrient consumption driven by robust demand for food and biofuels, as well as low global inventories, allowed these firms to raise prices. Investments in Russian railway infrastructure proved beneficial to Evraz, a leading supplier of rails and long steel products.

The demand growth prospects for many commodities, including oil, remain good, as long as the Chinese and Indian economies do not slow down dramatically. Consequently, the manager has increased the overweight in energy companies, particularly in coal and gas producers. In view of an upbeat outlook for commodity prices, he now has an overweight in materials.

Institutional Euro Blue Chip Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 131 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Meanwhile, economic indicators continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated in the region, while the unemployment rate fell.

The fund outperformed its benchmark over the review period, due mainly to selected stocks that generate opportunities for growth from within. Chemicals holdings catering to the buoyant agricultural commodities market supported performance. The requirement for better yields from agricultural land and increased crop plantation for biofuels drove demand for fertilisers and high quality seeds. This, coupled with a tight supply situation, boosted shares in K+S and Israel Chemicals. Electric utilities, such as E.ON and Électricité de France, found favour due to an optimistic outlook for power prices. Conversely, selected positions in banks, such as Italy's UniCredit, detracted from returns due to concerns about losses from risky loans.

The fund is overweight energy companies, with an exposure to a selection of oil refiners that should benefit from rising margins. For instance, Galp Energia stands to gain from the discovery of new oil wells in Brazil, which it jointly owns with Petrobras. Conversely, the manager remains underweight banks, and she sold the holding in Société Générale given its exposure to global capital markets. Towards the end of the period, however, she found attractively valued opportunities in this sector.

Institutional European Larger Companies Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 42 Million

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its rate three times after increasing it initially. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Economic indicators continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated in the region, while the unemployment rate fell.

Over the period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. A holding in Ryanair detracted, as investors focused on the impact of higher fuel costs on the airline's profits. The manager, however, believes that ancillary revenues such as booking and other fees will offset these additional costs. The position in Banco Popolare was hurt by the firm's disappointing results and concerns about its stake in Banca Italease. Nevertheless, the value of this stake has already been written down significantly and investors should focus on Banca Popolare's attractive franchise and long-term merger synergies. Meanwhile, an underweight in diversified financials helped given their losses from exposure to risky loans. Shares in Porsche also contributed, driven by the luxury car manufacturer's encouraging sales and speculation that it might raise its stake in Volkswagen.

The manager remains cautious about materials, as he believes the uptrend in the more cyclical metals & mining and chemicals sectors is not sustainable. Although he maintains an underweight in financials, he has added to companies, such as AXA in the insurance sector, that have a robust earnings outlook. He continues to favour companies, such as Porsche and Reed Elsevier, in the media and automobiles sectors.

Institutional Global Focus Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 43 Million

Manager's Overview:

The performance of major bourses was mixed over a period marked by a severe turmoil in financial markets. As default rates in the US sub-prime market rose, leading banks announced significant write-downs to account for potential losses, thus reducing the amount of credit they could provide. Concerns about the impact of the credit crisis on economic growth hurt investor confidence. Major central banks cut interest rates and took additional steps to improve liquidity, providing some reassurance. Against this backdrop, equities in Emerging Markets and the Pacific ex-Japan region, supported by continued strong domestic demand and rising commodity prices, proved the most resilient. Meanwhile, European bourses generated marginally positive returns in US dollar terms, while markets in the UK, the US and Japan retreated.

The fund significantly outperformed its benchmark over the review period. An exposure to agro-chemicals firms Mosaic and Monsanto contributed, as strong prices of soft commodities buoyed demand for their products. Elsewhere, a holding in CSL added value amid robust global demand for its blood plasma products and rising royalties paid by Merck. Meanwhile, increases in oil and gas prices, driven both by continued emerging-market demand and by a limited supply-side response, supported the share prices of companies such as Petrobras. Woodside Petroleum gained from its exposure to the rapidly growing Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) market, where supply remained constrained.

Given the uncertain outlook for economic growth, the manager is overweight sectors such as consumer staples and utilities that are traditionally considered defensive. The overweight in materials firms is concentrated in areas of strong demand growth, where the slowdown will have minimal impact. Key underweights include consumer discretionary stocks and industrials. Also, despite attractively valued companies in the US, the manager remains underweight here, as she believes there are better opportunities elsewhere.

Institutional Hong Kong Equity Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: HKD 1,133 Million

Manager's Overview:

Hong Kong equities outperformed the broader Asia Pacific market over the period. Strong corporate earnings, underpinned by robust economic growth, drove share prices higher. Supported by low unemployment and higher wages, private consumption rose steadily, while increasing Chinese demand aided exports. Moreover, rate cuts in the US boosted sentiment. Partially tempering these, however, were concerns over further credit tightening in China given mounting inflationary pressures. At a sector level, real estate developers gained amid better affordability and rising property prices. Financial stocks benefited from healthy consumer loan growth, while telecommunications were favoured due to an increase in subscribers.

The fund has outperformed its benchmark since its inception in September 2007. An overweight in property stocks, boosted by strong fundamentals, contributed, as did an underweight in the information technology and industrials sectors, which were hurt by a weakening demand outlook in the US. Within financials, holdings in Hang Seng Bank proved rewarding, as the firm profited from robust loan growth and increased financing for new public offerings. In contrast, a tighter monetary policy in China hurt shares in Industrial & Commercial Bank of China, but the manager remains positive about the firm's rising market share. Elsewhere, an underweight in utilities detracted, although the manager retained the underweight given an uncertain regulatory environment.

The fund is overweight the energy sector due to the rising price of oil. China's CNOOC stands out among top holdings, as the offshore oil & gas specialist pushes ahead with its expansion plans amid higher energy prices. The manager maintains a positive stance towards consumer discretionary stocks in light of the region's increasing affluence. He also favours Chinese insurance names given the continued sector deregulation and rising interest rates in the country. Meanwhile, he is cautious towards industrials in view of a moderating earnings outlook and is underweight utilities, as he believes there are better opportunities elsewhere.

Institutional Hong Kong Opportunities Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: HKD 850 Million

Manager's Overview:

Hong Kong equities outperformed the broader Asia Pacific market over the review period. Strong corporate earnings, underpinned by robust economic growth, drove share prices higher. Supported by low unemployment and higher wages, private consumption rose steadily, while increasing Chinese demand aided exports. Moreover, interest rate cuts in the US boosted sentiment. Partially tempering these, however, were concerns over further credit tightening in China given mounting inflationary pressures. At a sector level, real estate developers gained amid better affordability and rising property prices. Financials benefited from healthy growth in consumer loans, while telecommunications stocks were favoured due to an increase in subscribers.

Since its inception in September 2007, the fund has underperformed its benchmark. Stock selection in the financials and industrials sectors weighed upon returns. In particular, an underweight in selected property stocks proved unrewarding. The manager, however, is less optimistic about the sector given weakening primary sales and concerns about a US recession. A lack of exposure to some profitable banks and utilities also detracted. The manager gradually raised the allocation to overweight in these two segments. On a positive note, individual holdings in telecommunications added value in light of an upcoming industry restructuring, as did an underweight in the weak performing information technology stocks.

Given the global uncertainty, the manager favoured companies with domestically driven earnings and higher yields. He has a bias towards commercial banks due to their strong fundamentals. Among the top holdings, several off-benchmark positions in providers of investment services stand out. These firms are seen to benefit from long-term growth in stock markets. The exposure to electric utilities such as CLP Holdings and Hong Kong Electric was raised, as both have strong cash flows and provide defensive qualities in volatile conditions. Conversely, the manager maintains a significant underweight in the real estate sector in view of an uncertain outlook for property prices.

Institutional Japan Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: JPY 8,705 Million

Manager's Overview:

The Japanese market trended downwards for much of the period, hitting a multi-year low in mid-March 2008. Despite the country's limited direct exposure to the US sub-prime crisis, factors such as sluggish domestic demand, the absence of political initiative, a stronger yen and a dependence on overseas investors undermined share prices. While easing credit concerns and a reversal in yen appreciation fuelled a late rally, Japan remained a relative laggard among developed markets. Over the period, domestic sectors suffered the steepest declines. Government policies aimed at improving regulation inadvertently stifled activity in the construction and consumer finance industries. In contrast, upstream sectors performed well.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. A high level of exposure to the real estate sector, which fared poorly amid a slowdown in investment flows and tighter credit conditions, detracted from relative performance. Leoplace21, a construction and leasing firm, was the top detractor. New building regulations delayed the booking of sales, and the rising cost of raw materials threatened the company's profit margins. Meanwhile, the fund's limited exposure to defensive sectors, which found favour during a time of heightened uncertainty, also hindered performance. In contrast, video game developer Nintendo was the biggest contributor. Its handheld device and innovative software remained immensely popular, while its next-generation console, the Wii, outsold its competitors.

In what was an increasingly uncertain environment, the manager focused on companies with a high degree of earnings visibility and those that traded on below-market multiples. He reduced the fund's exposure to materials companies that faced a margin squeeze as a result of higher input costs and to major exporters with a high level of dependence on the US. Instead, he increased the fund's weighting in domestic names, such as mobile-communications company KDDI and rail operator East Japan Railway, that were poised to deliver strong relative earnings growth.

Institutional Japan Aggressive Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: JPY 3,577 Million

Manager's Overview:

The Japanese market trended downwards for much of the period, hitting a multi-year low in mid-March 2008. Despite the country's limited direct exposure to the US sub-prime crisis, factors such as sluggish domestic demand, the absence of political initiative, a stronger yen and a dependence on overseas investors undermined share prices. While easing credit concerns and a reversal in yen appreciation fuelled a late rally, Japan remained a relative laggard among developed markets. Over the period, medium-sized and smaller companies continued to underperform large caps. Negative newsflow regarding domestic consumption, input costs and bankruptcies discouraged investors.

Over the period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. Holdings among small-cap, domestic demand-orientated stocks eroded returns. Honeys, a retailer of women's casual clothing, was the top detractor. It reported disappointing results and monthly sales data remained sluggish due largely to weak consumption and unseasonable weather. Meanwhile, turmoil in financial markets and a reversal in investors' risk appetite weighed upon Shoei, a real estate leasing/securitisation firm. At a sector level, an overweight in real estate, which fared poorly amid a slowdown in investment flows and tighter credit conditions, also hindered relative performance. In contrast, an exposure to certain large-cap, machinery companies proved rewarding. Daikin Industries, a global leader in energy-efficient air-conditioning technology that benefited from stricter environmental regulations, was the top contributor.

The manager continued to focus on attractively priced, mid- and small-cap growth stocks. As a result of the severe market declines, valuations fell below anything we had seen for the past five years or more; many firms traded below book value and offered single-digit P/E ratios. As the manager expected aggregate earnings to falter, he looked for special factors that would enable a company to buck this trend. A prime example is Stanley Electric, a manufacturer of automotive lighting equipment, which benefited from the rising application of LEDs in notebook PCs.

Institutional Optimised European Equity Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 599 Thousand

Manager's Overview:

After an initial rise till June 2007, European markets moved lower amid continued concerns that the credit crisis, which originated in the US, could spread further and slow economic growth. Investors were also worried about rising consumer prices, as inflation has since September 2007 remained above the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target. In order to strike a balance between sluggish growth and rising inflation, the ECB kept interest rates on hold after raising them in June, while the Bank of England cut its key rate three times after increasing it initially. A weakening US dollar, which could hurt export-orientated companies, also weighed upon stocks. Relatively strong corporate earnings and merger activity, however, remained supportive. Economic indicators in the region continued to be mixed: GDP growth moderated, while the unemployment rate fell.

Since its launch on 9 July 2007, the fund has underperformed its benchmark. Concerns about a recession in the US heightened fears of a slowdown in global demand. Consequently, an overweight exposure to cyclical sectors, such as consumer discretionary and telecommunication services, and an underweight in defensive sectors, such as pharmaceuticals, resulting from the quantitative model, proved unfavourable. Stock selection, on the other hand, was rewarding, particularly in the consumer discretionary and information technology sectors. This reinforced the value of the optimised investment process, which targets stock selection as the main source of alpha.

This process seeks to reduce exposure to systematic risk factors and increase exposure to fundamental stock selection. This is primarily derived from the fundamentals-based ratings generated by the European research team. Sector exposures are the result of overall portfolio optimisation, based on buy or sell ratings. The manager maintains a slight overweight in small- and mid-cap stocks, due mainly to the fact that the model and the internal ratings work better within these categories. This allows him to access the higher alpha from investing in these stocks.

Institutional Pacific (ex-Japan) Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 14 Million

Manager's Overview:

Buoyed by sustained economic expansion and robust corporate performance, Asia Pacific equities ended the period higher, outperforming their global developed counterparts. The region, however, saw periods of high volatility amid concerns that an increasingly likely recession in the US would dampen regional exports. In Australia, higher borrowing costs eroded consumer sentiment, while China, underpinned by strong economic growth, proved to be the best performer. At a sector level, energy and materials firms benefited from rising oil and commodity prices, whereas a global credit crisis that reduced capital availability tempered the returns of banking stocks.

Over the review period, the fund significantly outperformed its benchmark, owing largely to an overweight in China and an exposure to quality names in Australia. Equipment & services firm WorleyParsons was favoured due to its strong earnings and new contracts. Chinese offshore oil & gas specialist CNOOC gained from expansion plans amid higher oil prices. A lack of exposure to financial stocks such as Centro Properties and ANZ, which were weighed down by the sub-prime fallout, contributed. Conversely, low exposure to defensive sectors, such as telecommunications and utilities, detracted. Although the manager reduced the underweight given the steady income of these firms, he retains his negative stance, as he believes there are better opportunities elsewhere.

The manager retains the overweight in the energy and industrials sectors, particularly in Australia. He initiated a stake in the country's largest construction contracting firm, Leighton Holdings, as the company's competitive position and strong order pipeline should hold it in good stead. Allocation to health care was increased to overweight, mainly through a position in Cochlear, the world's leader in hearing implants, given its strong management team and high return on invested capital. The exposure to consumer discretionary stocks was reduced to underweight. Media stocks were sold, as it was expected that advertising revenues would be hit by initiatives taken by companies to cut costs.

Institutional Emerging Market Debt Fund ¹

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 20 Thousand

Manager's Overview:

The period was marked by significant volatility, as the sub-prime crisis unfolded in the US and few markets across the globe were spared the residual impact of contracting liquidity. These countries continued to benefit from improving fundamentals due to rising commodity prices, increasing foreign currency reserves, improving current accounts, a reduction in debt levels and low US Treasury yields. Moreover, driven increasingly by internal demand, Emerging Markets have experienced five consecutive years of GDP growth in excess of 5%. These structural improvements have made them less susceptible to an economic slowdown in developed countries. Consequently, over the period, this asset class performed better than many of its peers in developed markets.

Since its launch in October 2007, the fund has underperformed its benchmark. Performance was negatively impacted by underweight positions in higher quality sovereign bonds (Brazil, Mexico, Malaysia), which outperformed, as yield spreads widened over the period. Corporate bond exposure, particularly in Russian companies, also detracted amid heightened risk aversion. Meanwhile, political risks undermined an overweight in Venezuela. On a positive note, an underweight in Turkey contributed, as the political landscape here became more uncertain. Holdings in Ivory Coast securities were beneficial in light of strong bond performance. A small exposure to emerging-market equities also proved rewarding.

The manager continues to be overweight external sovereign issues with a running yield advantage to the index. He also holds positions in emerging-market corporate bonds and equities related to this region. He gained exposure to the African sovereign bonds of Gabon and Ghana and increased positions in Ivory Coast. Holdings in Venezuela were also increased after bonds here saw weak performance through most of the period. Meanwhile, the exposure to Brazil and Peru was reduced due to better opportunities elsewhere.

Institutional Euro Bond Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: EUR 17 Million

Manager's Overview:

Benefiting from a flight to safety as investors shunned risky assets, European government bond markets generated positive returns over the 12 months. During the review period, the European Central Bank (ECB) increased interest rates once, in June, and thereafter kept them on hold. The last 12 months were characterised by a rise in headline inflation, driven by surging commodity prices, tight credit conditions resulting from the financial market turmoil, an unwinding of structured transactions and forced selling by leveraged investors such as hedge funds. These headwinds dampened sentiment, and investors became increasingly averse to risk. Subsequently, investment-grade corporate bonds and high-yield securities fared poorly, as credit spreads widened through most of the period.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An overweight in asset-backed securities (ABS) detracted after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. Although the fund was underweight financials, selected issues inhibited performance in light of write-downs by financial institutions and tighter bank lending standards. The losses, however, were limited, as banks finally started to trend up at the end of the review period as a result of central bank actions. On a positive note, an overweight in government bonds buoyed returns. Moreover, the fund benefited from its European yield curve steepening trade and active duration management.

Mindful of the opportunities created by the credit crisis, the manager steadily increased exposure to corporate bonds over the period. He retained an overweight in Eastern European emerging markets and in ABS; the names held in the portfolio continue to generate inflows, are of relatively short maturity, and have low credit risk. The manager also initiated an overweight in euro inflation-linked bonds, as inflation was a major concern in the region. He also moved the fund to a long-duration position in anticipation that the ECB would lower interest rates before the end of the year.

Institutional Global Bond Fund

Fund Size as at 30.04.2008: USD 394 Million

Manager's Overview:

Major government bond markets generated positive returns (in local currency terms) over the period amid a deepening credit crisis and expectations of a global economic slowdown, particularly in the US. In the beginning, higher inflation and rising interest rates as a result of stronger economic growth led government bonds to underperform investment-grade and high-yield securities. The US sub-prime crisis, however, fuelled fears of contagion into other asset classes, which triggered a flight to safety. This prompted government bonds to outperform corporate debt, causing credit spreads to widen sharply and high-yield bonds to fare poorly. Despite efforts by central banks to ease funding pressures, inter-bank lending rates moved up, tempering the positive effect of interest rate cuts made by policy makers in the US, the UK and Canada. Nonetheless, the European Central Bank has kept its rate on hold since June last year.

Over the review period, the fund underperformed its benchmark. An exposure to asset-backed securities detracted after downgrades from rating agencies and increased concerns about the scale of possible losses from the financial market turmoil led to a widening of spreads. The quality of the holdings, however, is good and there has been no deterioration in their fundamentals. An overweight in emerging-market bonds further hindered performance as the risk appetite of investors diminished. Conversely, holdings in inflation-linked bonds contributed amid rising energy and food prices in the US, Europe and Japan.

Over the year, the manager moved the fund from an overall underweight interest rate exposure to neutral. He maintained a short-duration US position while remaining long duration in Europe, the UK and Japan, where a deteriorating labour market and competitiveness have been the main themes. He implemented a flattening trade strategy on the US yield curve, as the market reacted positively to efficient central bank actions. In the credit market, more opportunities were identified in banks where the risk premium should switch from 'liquidity type' to one that is 'bank earnings type'.
